The White Paper accordingly proposes "the creation of two new instruments: a system of planning agreements with major tirms in key sectors of incustry, and a National Enterprise Board to provide the means for direct public initiatives in particular key sectors of industry".

The board is to be a holding company with a statutory financial objective and paying a public dividend to the Exchequer on its earnings. It will start by managing the stare's present sbareholdings in industry, excluding British Petroleum, and then hand out money to companies for investment schemes, normally taking a holding in their equity capital.

Although working in much the same way as the old Industrial Reorganization Corpora-tion, the NEB will in general retain the shareholdings ir acquires. Sound companies with sbort-term difficulties will be encouraged to go to the NEB for finance or advice.

The White Paper says the Plans for enlarged Ulster police reserve force expected to be completed next month

From Robert Fisk Belfast

Mr Rees, Secretary of State Northern Ireland, is expected to complete plens next month for an enlarged police reserve force in Northern Ireland which might win the sympathies of "loyalists" who are calling for e boma guard in Ulster.

The raservists would work near their bomes, which presumahly means that Protestants and Roman Catholics would police their own streets, although Mr Rees repeated yesterday that there would be no "third force" in Northern Ireland and no return to the days of the Protestant B Spe-

His confidence may prove ill founded, bowever. Last night loyalists in the co Down resort of Bangor started recruiting for their own home guard, and many Roman Catholic politicians believe that ir is too late for the British Government to deal with the threat of a loyalist militia.

Mr Magorrian appears to bave been wearing a mask, and the Army said that they found a loaded .303 rifle with a relescopic sight by his body. Little facts but great danger

Has the Government changed heart over State control and nationalization of industry? The White Paper makes it clear that the new proposals are even more dangerous even though the numbers and details of the companies affected are left out.

The White Paper makes it quite clear that the main object is to control many of Britain's big and efficient companies. A new departure is the extraordinary statement that it is to take 100% equity in a number of firms in order to 'act decisively'. Unlike the franker Green Paper last year it no longer talks about wanting to put socialists on the boards. This time it talks about industrial democracy and the fact that the unions if they 'so wish' will be involved in planning agreements.

We challenge Mr. Benn to say why the unions themselves should not have to submit themselves to planning agreements.

It is an economically naive document in that it wonders why British companies sometimes invest overseas rather than in this country. If socialist politicians would only look at themselves they would find the answer.

The answer by British industry will be found at the bottom of this page.

Issued by Aims of Industry in defence of free enterprise.

Powers sought for closer control of key industries

The White Paper on the contribute regeneration of British industry, published yesterday, proposes the setting up of two new instruments to permit claser government control of industry. National planning agreements will be made with firms in key industries to ensure that companies' plans are in harmony with national objectives and a National Enterprise Board will be set up to enable direct public initiatives in particular key indus-

The White Paper statas: The White Paper statas:
Britain's prosperity and welfare depend on the wealth generated by its industry and all those who work in it. It matters vitally to all of us that British industry should be strong and successful. We need hoth efficient publicly owned industries, and a vigorous, alert, responsible and profitable private sector, working together with the Government in a framawork which brings together the interests of all concernad; those who work in industry, whether in management or on the shop floor, those who own on the shop floor, those who own its assets, and those who usa ita products and depend upon its success.

Since tha war we have not as a nation been able—for a variety of reasons, social, economic and industrial—fully to harness the resources of skill and ability wa should be able to command. Wa bave been falling steadily further behind our competitors. We have not found the self-confidence to hridee that gap: and as it widens, hridge that gap; and as it widens, the investment and new industrial ralationships that we need if wa are to maintain our living stan-dards become progressively more difficult to secure. In 1971, investment for each worker in British manufacturing industry was less than half that in Franca, Japan or the United States, and well below that in Germany or Italy. In splite of the measures to encourage investment taken since than, it has still lagged taken since than, it has still lagged hebind; indeed it was significantly less in 1972 and in 1973 than it was in 1970. Moreover, when it comes to making effective use of our manufacturing equipment, we are less successful than most of our competitors. Because there has not been the demand for investment in manufacturing industry here, funds that could have been used to immanufacturing industry nere, runos that could have bean used to improve end mndernize British industry hava been deployed elsewhere. In the past ten years the rate of direct investment by British firms overseas has more than trebled.

Need for better relationship between partners

Successive governments bave striven to correct these defiriencies, both by general economic measures and by various forms of assistance to industry. But the attitude of governments to industry, and indeed of industry to government has been too remote to ments, bas heen too remote, too much coloured by the concept that much coloured by the concept that the Government's main function towards industry is that of regulation to prevent the activities of industry, or the abuse of its powers, damaging the interests of other sectors of the community. That relationship is no longer enough, industry and the Government should also be partners in the pursuit of the objectives which spell success for industry and prosperity for this country. This country a closer, clearer and more perity for this country. It is requires a closer, clearer and more positiva relationship between government and industry; and the construction of that better relationship. ahip requires the development of new institutions. This White Paper sets out the Government's proposals for achieving these results. The Government's main pro-posals for extending public owner-ship were set out in the manifesto on which the Lahour Party fought tha tast general election, and are now being presented to Parliament now being presented to Parliament and the public in greater detail. They include proposals for community ownership of davalopment land, the establishment of the British National Oli Corporation, the unitonalization of the shipbuilding and aircraft industries, the extension of public ownership in the road haulage and construction ladostries, and schemes for hringing commercial ports and cargo bandling activities under public ownership and control. In pursuit of the more general public ownership and control.
In pursuit of the more general objectives for the relationship between Government and industry which have already been described, the Government propose in this White Paper the creation of two white Paper the creation of two new instruments: a system of planning agreements with major firms in key sectors of industry, and a National Enterprise Board to provide the means for direct public initiatives in particular key sectors

Planning agreements will bring about a closer understanding between companies—workforce as well as manegement—and the Government on the aims to be followed and the plans to he adopted in pursuit of them. They will not only help to ensure that the plens of compenies are in harmony with national needs and objectives: they will also provide a objectives: they will also provide a onjectives; they will also provide a securer and more coherent hasis than bes existed in the past for ensuring that government financial assistance is deployed where it will be most effectively used. A fuller exchange of information will be an essential ingradient in planning excoange of information with the air essential ingredient in planning agreements; the information which companies provide in this context will be used for this purpose only. will be used for his purpose stay.

The Nedonal Enterprise Board will take over the ownership of the sbares that the Government now bold in a number of companies. It will be e new source of investment canital for industry, able to pro-vide capital by loan or acquisition of speres—though the geoeral rule will be that, where the board provides such capital, it should take a proportionete share in the owner-ship of the firm, it will act as the agent of the Government in the efficient restructuring of industry. It will be able to channel grams to companies in difficulties. In all its companies in unificatives. At the activities it will pay close attention to regional development opportunities. For many of its ectivities the board will be able to follow the pattero and build on the experi-ence of the former Industrial Re-organization Gorporation. These proposals will be presented to Parliament in a new Industry Bill; and, as a new Industries and a proposals will a new Industry Bill; and, as the need arises, appropriate changes will be proposed in company law. In the meantime, the Government's intentions are more tully set out in the rest of this White Paper, so that the private sector of industry will know where It stands and can press abead with its own plans for development. The Government believe that this new initiative will ment of greater industrial effi-ciency, more and better invest-ment, and a higher returo on that investment. By thus entering into explicit partnership with industry, the Government expect to raise the quality of management, develop lodustrial democracy, and improve both the country and the quality. both the quantity and the quality of manufacturing industry's contri-bution to the development and growth of the economy on which the prosperity of all of us depends. In their application to the private sector planning agreements will provide a new and improved fra-mework for cooperation between the Government and leading indus-trial companies. A planning agree-ment will not be an agreement in the sense of a civil contract enfor-ceable at law. It will, however, be ceable at law. It will, however, be given safficiant recognition by statute to enable the company concerned to rely on assistance promised under it. The Act which gives effect to the new system will also provide reserve powers to require the relevant companies to provide the Government and the workers in the firm with the information neaded to formulate and monitor a planning agreement. There will, however, he no statutory requirement upon a company to conclude an agreement. The heart of this system will ha a series of consultations between the Government and companies, lead-ing to an agreement about plans to an agreement about plans to the following three years; these will be reviewed and rolled forward annually. In the course of these consultations, the Government will assess with the company lta needs for assistance to support and reinforce agreed company and reinforce agreed company plans, with special reference to selective assistance for new employment projects in tha regions. In particular, if in the course of these discussions it hecomes claar that in order to align the company's plans with national needs some financial assistance is required beyond that tance is required beyond that which would in any case he avail-able to the company by way of able to the company by way of capital allowances, regional development aid and regional employment premium, the Government will be ready to provide the kind of discretionary financial assistance by way of grants and loans for which the Industry Act 1972 now provides. They will discuss with the company the scale on which and the purposes for which which and the purposes for which this assistance should be provided, so as to meet the requirements of individual recipients and to further the achievement of national objec-tives. In order that companies shall bave greater certainty in making and carrying out their plans, the Government intend that once an agreement has been concluded, regional assistance for the projects which it covers will, during the currency of the agreement, not fall below the rates in force at the time of the agreement. Mareover these Mureover these discussions could help to identify requirements for investment funds for consideration by the National Enterprise Board, if necessary by means of joint ventures with the companias. Mure generally, the intention is that the outcome of discussions with companias will bave an important bearing on the formulation of the Government's own plans; in this way the needs of plans; in this way the needs of companies and the economy will be Financial assistance under the Industry Act, 1972, including regional development grants, will of course continue to be available for companies not covered by plan-ning agreements, as well as those emering into agreements which satisfy criteria for assistance. The payment of regional employment predum and capital allowances will not be affected by any of these will not be affected by any of these The principal application of planning agreements will be to large companies, but in times of eco-omic difficulty it is often the small businessman, dependent to a great extent oo personal wealth as a source of finance, who soffers the greatest hardship. The Govero-ment are therefore reviewing the problems of small businesses and will put forward aeparate proposals in cater for their special needs. In their discussions with companies, the Government will be concerned only with strategic issues. In addition, they regard it as most important that the new arrangements should not restrict the freedom of companies to respond to market changes, particularly where they are in competition with over-seas manufacturers. The Govero-ment would welcome the views of firms on the Issues that principally concern them. Clearly they might well vary from company to com-pany but matters of obvious con-cern to the Government would in-

ence to its timing and location; prices policy; productivity; employment, with special reference to its regional balance; exports and import saving, and investment directed to these ends; product development; implications of company plans for industrial relations and arrangements tor negotiation and consultation; and interests of consumers and the

The Government recognize that, even in relation to a small number of important issues of this kind, companies' plans and forecasts which go beyond the immediate future may be subject to change at short notice in response to market short notice in response to market short notice in response to market fluctuations. Despite these reservations and uncertainties the Government believe that the new relationship they are seeking with companies and the associated financial assistance will henefit the compenies taking part and will lead tu fletter arrangements for the management of the economy.

Companies to 0e covered: The new arrangements will apply to major and strategic firms in key sectors of mannfacturing industry, end in selected industries other than manufacturing of particular importance to the economy. Multinational companies will be included only in respect of their British boldings. It will not, bowever, he possible to operate planning agreements from the very outset so thet they cover all the compenies that will eventually fall within their scope. A transitional period will be necessary, both for the companies themselves and for government departments which will need to develop adequate arrangements to handle without delay the plans that Companies to De covered : The new handle without delay the plans that are put to them. The Government are determined to see that the benefits of the new errangements they propose should be secured with the minimum of extra administrative cost for the companies concerned and for the government service. They will therefore be selective in their initial approach. They will introduce planning agreements in selected sectors of particular importance, beginning with companies in accompanies in accompanies which like the engineering

The major nationalized industries and publicly owned firms wil also fall within the scope of the plan-ning agreements system, which for them will be administered through the sponsoring departments. The interests of employees: Employees and their represent-etives will have a major interest in the issues covered by planning agreements. The Government intend that the plans to be covered by an agreement will be drawn up by management in close consultation with trade union representatives from the firm. The framing and updating of agreements will thus involve a continuing discussion between management end unious and will constitute an im-portant advance in the part to be played by industrial democracy in the planning of company strategy. The Government envisage that union representatives from companies, while not formally parties to planning agreements, would also take part where they so wisbed in consultations on agreements with

If consultation is to be effective, union representatives must be pro-vided with all the necessary information relevant to the coments of planning agreements. The Govern-ment will therefore require planning agreements. The Govern-ment will therefore require employars to disclose information of this kind, except where disclo-sure could seriously prejudice the company's commercial interests or would be contrary to the interests of national security.

Consultation: The Government propose to enter into immediate discussions with both sides of in-dustry, and with the National about the best means of implementing the new system and the sectors of industry in which it might most usefully be first employed. The Government's intention throughout is to look for arrangements which are simple and flexible and based so far as possibla on the existing planning arrangements of individual companies. The kind of procedural arrangements which might lead up to a planning agreement are briefly described at the end of the White

Information to be provided by Government: The Government's projections and the companies' own intentions and plans will interact on each other: the primary teract on each other: the primary purpose of a planning agreement is that they should. In producing their projections the Government will need to take account of companies' own plans, while the companies will, for their part, want in know the Government's views on the likely development of the economy. In this way the Government and the companies concerned will share with each other their developing assessments of future trends. The Government would welcome the views of those responsible tor corporate planning in industry about the information which would be of the greatest value to them and how it might most suitably be disseminated. The value to them and how it might most suitably be disseminated. The question is not whether Government projections should he supplied within the context of planning agreements but which projections, given the unavoidable uncertainties, are likely to be of most tainties, are likely to he of most talnties, are likely to he of most value. The Government propose to create a new Instrument to secure where necessary large-scale sustained investment to offset the effects of the short-term pull of market forces. These new powers of initiative ere netter exercised through a new agency thao dealt with direct by Government, and for this purpose it is proposed to set up a National Enterprise Board (NEB). One of the functions of this new egency will be to huild oo and enlarge the activities previously discharged by the Industrial Reorganization Corporation (IRC). It will in addition be an industrial holding company with subsidiary companies in manufacturing industry. A number of existing government sbareboldings in compenies will be transferred to the board immediately on its establishment. Adequate funds will be made available to enable the board, subject to governmental and parliamentary control es set out later in this governmental and parliamentary control es set out later in this White Paper, to expand its activities vigorously to discharge the responsibilities set out below: (a) It will be a new source of investment capital for manufactoring industry; in providing finance it will normally teke a corresponding share in the equity capital. In this it will set out to supplement and not to displece the supply of lovestment trom existing financial institutions and from companies' own resources.

(b) It will have the former Industrial Reorganization Corporation's entrepredential role in promoting industrial efficiency and profitability by promoting or assisting the reorganization or development of an industry but, unlike the IRC,

The board may also acquire part boldings in companies through iniot ventures or through its participation in a reorganiza-tion. But to act decisively in its role of creating employment and creating new industrial capacity, the board will need a number of companies where it holds 100 per cent of the equity capital, io order to avoid conflict between its objectives and the interests of private sbarebulders. The Government consider that auitable criteria for the acquisition of a company sbould include the following: danger of its passing into unaccep-table foreign control; and stim-ulation of competition in a sector where that is weak. Although the NEB will be principally concerned with profitable companies, it may on occasion be called on to take over an ailing called on to take over an alling company which is in danger of collapse but needs to be maintained and restored to a sound economic basis for reasons of regional employment or industrial policy. This responsibility of the NEB will be distinct from its other functions, and it will be separated in such a way from them that the NEB will be compensated specifically for this rescue activity, to ensure that its overall financial discipline and viability are not undertuned. Takeover moves 'will aggravate crisis' aggravate crisis'

Conservatives and Liberals criticized the White Paper on industry yesterday for failing to meet industry's naeds.

Mr Heseltine, the Conservative's spokesman on trade and industry, said the proposals were ill conceived and irrele-vant to industrial needs. Not nnly would they aggravate what the Prime Minister had described as the worst economic crisis for 30 years, but they would divert energy and atten-

They would commit a Labour Government with an overall majority to nationalize some inoutright, and would set up a National Enterprise Board (NEB) to take control of an undefined and limitless range of companies.
"No one knows", he said, which companies ara to he selected for state takeovers. The criteria laid down in the White Paper are so vague as to leave total discretion in the hands of a Labour Government, which will heve the power to give apacific or general directions to the National Enterprise Board where it wishas to overrula its commercial judgment. He would press for clearer assurances as to which companies were to ha affected.

If Labour obtains a majority In Parliament compulsory acquisition of companies would he ensured, and in the present circumstances in which the Government had drained industry of its cash, thera would be nothing to prevent the NEB from buying companies through the atock market at knockdown prices.

The most sinister weapon of state interference, he added, would be the pressure exercised to push companies into a suffocating net of state control called planning agreements.

Again, the White Paper gave no indication of which companies would be coerced first. None of the proposals could he eeen in isolation. They had to ne seen against the background of the cash sbortage and crisis of confidence afflicting industry. They would increase the uncertainty and threaten investment. further

The attitude of Mr John Pardoe the Liberals' spokesman on economic affairs, was one of disappointment. He felt that the White Peper would lead neither to the regeneration of industry, as its authors claimed, nor to red revolution, which the Tory Party would have everyone helieve would follow its implementation.

He welcomed some features of the White Paper in which he said he detected much of the analysis of the failings of indus-try to be found in Liberal pamphlets of the early 1960s. He agreed that government and industry had been too far apart and should be brought into closer partnership; that in-dustry should ba fully account-able for the investment it gets from the taxpayer; and with the renewed commitment to regional development implicit in the White Paper. However, he pointed out that the Government's view of industrial democracy and ours are entirely different things The Government states quite clearly that planning agree-ments will be drawn up in close consultation with trade union representatives, and thereby gives the game away. "To Labour, an extension of industriai democracy is simply another name for the extension of the monopoly powers of organized labour. That is not democracy at all. "There are only 10 million trade union members in British industry; what about the 20 to 25 million workers who are not members of trade unions? Are thay not to he consulted also? Under Liheral plans consulta-tions would he held through the medium of works councils."

He emphasized that "the greatest criticism that Liberals would make is that all these proposals taken together pre-suppose some all-wise omnisci-ent government which can bring light and understanding ultimate truth to hear upon the prublems of industry". But, he asked, where was such a government to be found?

"Surely not on the benches of tha present Tory and Labour parties in the House of Commons? The White Paper is in fact no more than an extension of the well-tried and failed state capitalism. Liberals want to go beyond this to the aims and objects of a post-capitalist economy.

The worst reported big city in the world' to have its own regional morning journal

Journalist to launch a daily for Londoners

By Alan Hamilton

Although the English are among the world's most avid newspaper readers, their capital a moroing newspaper devoted to its affairs and interests. That omission, it is hoped, will be rectified next January with the launching of a new daily.

It is being prepared by Mr Peter Paterson, aged 43, a journalist with 26 years' experieoce, who has been industrial correspondent of The Sunday Telegraph and assistant editor of the New Statesman. He plans to produce the new newspaper, to be called The Globe, every weekday from Monday to Friday, oo a launching budget of only £175,000. He said that one ioterested hacker had provided him with office space and a well knowo trade union was ready to put up money.

He hopes to produce a regional-style paper on the model of the Yorkshire Post or the Newcastle Journal, covering local affairs in detail and depth.

"London is the worst reported big city in the world", he said. "But because it is such an interoational ceotre of diplomacy and husiness I aim to have good foreigo news coverage as well." The newspaper's outlook, he said, would be "iodepeodeotly radical"; he has learnt much from the so-called uoderground Typesetting would be by photographic means in the hands of another contractor. By confining circulation to Loo-don, he hopes to avoid the great expense of distribution.

Mr Paterson said be had kept the printing unions fully informed of his plans and had met with oo serious resistance.
He denied that he was seeking to breach established Fleet

Big jump in recruits to the Army and RAF

By Henry Stanhope Defence Correspondent

Big increases in recruiting for the Army and the RAF were recorded between April 1 and Juce 30, the first quarter of the recruiting year. Only the Royal Navy figures continued to decline. The increase over the same period last year is attributable partly to the raising of the school-leaving age, which pared last year's figures to a minimum. The Army's junior intake was up by 932, a rise of 105 per cent on the same quarter in 1973.

Britain's uncertain ecocomic future is also thought to be a big factor, because adult recruiting is also climbing steadily as more young men turo to the security offered by the armed forces.

Despite a small rise in Royal Marines recruiting the Royal Naty and Marines combined total was down to 1,345 compared with 1,509, a drop of 11 per cent. The total Army figures were 4,807 compared with 3,508, a rise of 37 per cent, and the RAF's at 1,099 compared with 601, were up by 83 per cent. The total for the three Services was 7,251 instead of 5.618, a 29 per cent improvement on 1973.

The RAF figures bave been distorted for some time because of a planned ruodown in strength, so the rise of 83 per cent is 10 some extent artificial.

The Ministry of Defence must be encouraged by the returns in general, after a bleak period. Commenting on the army improvement, it sald that prospects for the recruiting year were most eocouraging. On June 30 the total strengths of the forces with last year's equivalent figures in hrackets, were: Royal Navy and Royal Marines 77.318 (80.839); Army 170,376 Army (176,875); (103,492). 97,696

Labour delegates, still divided over the issue of Scottish devo-lution, meet tomorrow in Glas-gow to settle the party's policy on the matter.

There is no sign that the two sides have come any closer to compromise since the dispute began. The party's Scritish executive remains resolutely against the type of elected assembly supported by the national executive in London.

Orvieto seeks to preserve heritage

From Peter Nichols

Rome, Aug 1S
Signor Italo Torroni, Mayor of Orvieto, states in no uncertain terms that the city bas known no building speculation, nor will. Yet Orvieto has become an important case for the con-servationists who have visualized pickaxes at work a stone's throw from the great cathedral.

It is not only the unique quality of the city that gives mportance to the campaign for saving Orvieto from speculation. Signor Torroni is communist, and communist administrations some medieval wall, or a termove public buildings such as signor Antonio Gir how to govern and how to prohave been but, by and large, down to the plain.

Orvieto is in Umbriz and the Umbrian region boasts, quite rightly, of devoting much atten-tion to dealing with the historic centres of its principal cities: Perugia, Assisi, Orvieto, Todi, Foligno, to name the first that come to mind.

Orvieto is unique in another way: it stands high up on its which imposes on it a double difficulty of preserving the ancient city and the valley

A year ago a group describing themselves as "writers, men of culture, journalists", published a letter addressed to the Superior Council for Antiquities and the Fine Arts, calling for stricter cootrol over the type of buildings being constructed in the valley. The signatories in-cluded Signora Elena Croce. that neither the "men of cul-ture" nor the mayor are thoroughly convincing. By comparison with what has happened to other Italian cities, Orvieto has suffered little from the speculators. For example, the Sicilian city of Agrigento, which apart from its Greek temples, had a medieval centre comparable with that of Orvieto, literally collapsed under the weight of illegal apartment blocks; Naples has been reduced to a cement jungle from its position of one of the wonders of Mediterra-nean beauty; and Rome is a byword for corruption and speculation.

In the old centre of Orvieto, the most offensive innovations are the garages cut into the ground floor of many of the old huildings, a disgusting practice which not only detracts from the buildings themselves but appears an act of homage to the main enemy of the type of life which used to be lived in the party which has present the city.

as Bologna and the Umbrian region have recognized, the money available for new building is much better spent on restoring the old centres, not building new suburban areas which are ugly and impose a form of lifa that is already collapsing in Italy. Orvieto in the past has

A solution to the problem of finding a new Vice-President is proposed in the congressional Record today. Members of Congress have the right of inserting speeches which they have not actually delivered, or, indeed anything that takes their fancy ioto that document. It was not at all surprising therefore that a proposal under the name of Representative Earl Landgrehe, of Indiana, should have appeared in it today.

"Mr Speaker," it stated, former President Nixon's mother was a saint, by bis own admission in his farewell message to the White House staff.

But he omitted to mention bis own saintly qualities in that Leftist fellow-travellers, Mr Speaker. By God, I bope he listened closely. . . "

The statement then proposes that President Ford should name Mr Nixon Vice-President, and then resign in his favour. Mr Landgrebe was, indeed, one of Mr Nixou's staunchest sup-porters and this parody of his style and sentiments burts the more because of its fidelity to more because of its fidelity to the original.

But parody it is, and Representative Landgrebe, and the congressional authorities, are much incensed. Some unkind person simply sent the alleged speech to the Record and it was put in unverified.

The Speaker of the House is now trying to find the perpentator of the hoaxes and to improve the Congress's publishing arrangements.

Buenos Aires, Aug 15.—The Cahinet purge begun by Presi-dent Isahel Peron this week appears to be aimed at terminating the inertia which has paralysed the Government since the death of General Peron.

Mr Callaghan still at the centre of diplomatic activity to pick up pieces from Cyprus conflict

While the Turkish invasion force on Cyprus was completing its advance on Famagusta, Mr James Callaghao, the Foreign Secretary, was again the ceotre of diplomatic activity seeking a solution to the crisis. It was felt in Whitehall, however, that there was little that Britaio or any other outside nation could do at present to stop the fighting. The Turks were clearly determined to go through with their military operation and, until that was completed, there was no chance of a political solution.

yesterday Mr Callaghao and Mr Wilson met Archhishop Makarios, who is still regarded hy Britain as the Cypriot bead of stste. Mr Callaghan also met Dr Joseph Luns, Secretary-General of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and continued to maintain close contact with Dr Heory Kissinger, the American Secretary of State.

Dr Luos decided to come to London hecause of the important role Mr Callaghan has played in the Cyprus negotia-tioos up to oow. Duriog their 45-minute meeting, they examined the implication of Greece's sort of military retaliation. It provide a basis on decision to withdraw its troops proved to he more than a temporary gesture of annoyance hy Karamanlis Government, would weaken seriously the southern flank of Nato.

Like the British, Dr Luns appeared to believe thera was little that could be done until the fighting in Cyprus had stopped. After his meeting with Mr Callaghan, he said that no spectacular action could be expected io the immediate future. He hoped Greece would return its forces to Nato once the crisis was resolved—a view fully shared by Britaio.

At the meeting with Arch-hishop Makarios at 10 Downing Street, Mr Callaghan gave the Cypriot President an account of the abortive Geneva talks and there was general agreement that a political solution to the Cyprus problem would have to be found.

Although a feeling of gloom still pervades Whitehall about the situation, there bave heen one or two factors which give one or two factors which give rise to cautious optimism. Most important is the fact that the Greeks have not reacted to the Greek inaction, it is thought, is as much due to heavy diplomatic pressure by Britain and the United States as to the realization that Greece would lose in a war against Turkey.

Secondly, Britain bas received assurances from both sides in Cyprus that they have no interest in infringing the rights of Britain's avereign hase areas on the island. The British troops in Cyprus, excluding the 1,400 members of the United Nations force are there exclusions. Nations force, are there exclusively to protect tha bases. An attack on one of the bases would hring Britaio into the conflict directly.

Thirdly, the emergency conference called yesterday by Mr Glafkos Clerides, the Greek Cypriot leader, was seen as an indication that the Greek Cypriots were still prepared to the tevents of the past two days. If the Turkiah advances stop at the "Atilla' line and the Greek Cypriots are prepared temporarily to hand over this part of the island, this would at least provide a basis on which talks could be resumed.

Hand-to-hand fighting nearing Saigon

Saigoo, Aug 15.—Hand-to-band fighting raged 15 miles from Saigoo today after communist iroops supported by tanks attacked a Government army camp, using armour closer to the capital than ever before, military sources said. The Saigon command said that the ettack had been repulsed, but it also admitted that fighting was contiouing. Military sources said that the Government battalion at the camp bad left its perimeter to fight round it. Government tacticians are beginning to worry that if communist troops ere eble to dig in where they have oow moved, they might bring in their big 130mm artillery pieces, which would bring Saigoo withio their range.

Simultanenusly, a big communist force attacked a Government position near the state of the developed world. Io 1971 the number of persons per square kilometre was 228 (in England and Wales it was higher at 323). In Europe, in 1971, the ooly countries with more than one million inhabitants to bave

Britain's dilemma is, more or less, people

Population control is expected to be the most controversial subject of debate at the World Population Conference which begins in Bucharest on Monday. In the following articles Eric Thompson argues that Britain's population will not rise as officially forecast, and Professor Bernard Benjamin puts a case for allowing our population to shrink.

Advantages of a smaller population

1 thiok that the British Govern ment should have an explicit population policy and my persocal view is that this policy should be designed to allow the population—now 56 millions—to fall steadily until it reaches a much lower level, say 35 millinns, and then to encourage fertility rates to rise to e replacement level so thet the population remains steady at this reduced number.

As to effects, there are two separate issues; the effect of the population being permenetly smaller, end the effect of the traositional period of temporary decline during which fertility rates are below the replacement

With regard to population size the suggestion that this should be reduced will, I koow, be an anathema to all those wbo bave anything to sell, whether it be butter or minority politics, and I am sure that in the coming months we shall hear all the old argumeots about economies of scale and the need for a strong bome-based market and so on. I do not think there is very much in these economic Tanan achieved 2001 mic expansion while hringing ber birth rate down sharply after 1947. There will also be those who will argue that a lower population means that Britain would lose its influence in the world but since the Second World War it has been amply proved that the influence of a country is oo longer pro-portiooate to the size of its population (if it ever was).

The edvantages of a smaller population are manifold. It would ease many of our social and economic pressures. It would ease the social pressure on womeo to produce children whether they want them or oot and allow more scope for women to "fulfil" themselves io the variety of roles from which they have been so loog and so wrongly excluded. Apart from enriching society they would, as never before, be help-ing to ease the increase in old age dependency which may occur as birth rates fall.

This would also solve another problem in that if family sizes are ultimately 10 be kept at an average appropriate to replacement of the population without growth or reduction. theo the avoidance of pres-surized pregnaocies would leave those who want, and are educa-tionally and temperamentally equipped to heodle large families, to have them without raising the average above replacement since there would be many more families of zero size.

Britain is already one of the most crowded countries to the In Europe, in 1971, the only countries with more than one million inhabitants to bave population densities of this order were Belgium (316) and The Netherlands (315).

The figure for France was much less at 92 and that for Sweden only 18. For Europe as a whole the average density was 93. This compares with 10 for Northero Americe, 11 for Africa and 72 for Asia.

A reduction in our populatioo size would ease this crowding, the desperate scramble for land and bousing and the strain of always having too many neighbours. It would ease the worst features of urbanization by allowing much more open cooditions of dwelling and it would mitigate problems of pollution.

lems and reduce the conflict between homes and roads. It thousand children were born in It would ease traffic probwould ease the pressures on all other resources wbether these be health services, educational institutions or leisure facilities. It would also ease problems of mostly amoogst the larger famiant to recognize the needs to n upon world resnurces; to play our pert to checking the world's beadloog rush towards a crisis of enormous proportions in food, energy and pollution.

With regard in the transi-tional problem, the argument will be revived that if the re-duction in the birth rate reduces the flow of births the population will become older in population will become older in its structure and there will be an increase in old age dependency, that is there will be fewer workers to provide for the older people in the population. We have bowever already contended with this problem once during this century without serious economic harm (though we beve as yet shirked the social challenge it bas presented).

tended with this problem once during this cectury without serious economic harm (though we beve as yet shirked the social challenge it bas presented).

The hirth rate in this country fell substantially above 1910 end the proportion of people aged 65 and over io the population began to iocrease from an aboormally low level—of just over 5 per cent to which it bad been reduced by the very bigh birth rates of the 19th century—to a level much more appropriate to a stable population with lower birth rates. The sharp fall io births came at a time when the population was abnormally young so that even if himself and the profit of low births io the early 1950s. It is therefore perhaps not surprising that it has been suggested that the fall after 1964 results from births being postponed, not caocelled, and that hirths will rise again once parents decide to build their postponed families. The Government Actuary—who produces the projections on which government departments plan—has accepted this post-order to be by boom as is sometimes beby boom as is sometimes between the period of low births io the early 1950s. It is therefore perhaps not surprising that it has been suggested, as was the period of low births io the early 1950s. It is over 60 to the working population under those ages rose from 0.14 io 1901 m 0.21 in 1931 and 0.36 in 1971 and remaios fairly steady at that

However the ratio of children to workers fell from 0.70 in 1901 to 0.52 in 1971 and what more important, since it provided the necessary economic easement, the ratio of nongaiofully employed womeo to workers fell from 0.47 in 1901 workers tell from 0.47 in 1901 to 0.31 in 1971. This maant that the index of all kinds of dependency (as a ratio to workers) fell from 1.31 in 1901 to 1.19 io 1971.

Thanks therefore to the eotry of married women ioto employment in large numbers, a decline in the birth rate has already happened once this century without serious econoall we survived two wars. What about next time? There will be more married womeo who, freed from pressure, will prefer an interesting job to a nursiog chair. But we bave oot yet begun to make industry less manpower intensive as, for many years now, we have been promised it will be. The 1970 manpower shedding and more receotly the three-day week bave shown that there is a good deal of labour to spare quite apart from the large army of unemployed that we bave bad so long that no one regards it as the oooseose that it really is.

In short there seems little likelihood of real economic difficulty. We might even buy a little time to prepare for the greater leisure that aummation may ultimately bring.

Forecasts about falls io the hirth rate leading to a reduction io the population ere not new. They were common to the 1930s, when births during the depressioo remained at a low level following a fall through the 1920s. > As Scotland bas its own Registrar General, the easiest way to examine recent trends is to look just at births in England and Wales which account for 90 per cant of the national total.

The first point is that births are out falling simply because the number of mothers is falliog. The number of womeo in their twenties—who account for two thirds of all hirths—is oow about 17 per cent higher than it was io 1964. Allowing for such changes, the "real" fall io births is about 30 per cent.

Furthermore, the average age of marriage fell throughout the 1960s, so more womeo were marrying at ages when past experieoce suggested that they would bave relatively large

The fall has taken place in three stages. It was women who had already been married for five or more years who started the treod. 10 1964 they bad 348,000 children; last year the corresponding women bad 218,000—37 per ceot fewer. At the end of 1964, too, births in the secood, third and fourth years of marriage, which bad been rising, levelled off. Births io the first two years of marriage carried oo rising in 196S and 1966, however. We can split these into two groups. those children born io the first eight months of marriage (most presumably conceived premaritally), and those born in the oext 16 months. The oumber in the second group reached its peak in 1966; but the number of premarical conceptions carried oo rising for two more years. The peak year for illegitimate births was 1968, when they accounted for 8½ per ceof of all bhirths—a share which ha of all bbirths—a share which ba ramained constant for the past six years. Premarital conceptions fell from 9 per ceot of the total in 1968 to 71 per cent in 1973; so much for the so-called permissive society.

Looking at first marriages only, in 1964, 65,000 children were born to mothers who already had four or more child-Last year only 20,000 ren. such childreo were born: 70 per cent less than in 1964.

There has been a marked trend away from larger families over the Nest decade. First and second children accounted for 78 per cent of the total in 1973 compared with 67 per cent in 1964. It is the fact that the reduction in births took place first, and has been most marked. in the later years of marriage and in larger families that casts families and a genuine reduc-tion in the number of children for whom facilities must be pro-vided, not just a delay in their

It is one thing to identify the treods, but another to explain them. No doubt she availability of contraceptive pills bas been one influence on births. This seems the most plansible explanation of the recent period (from the summer of 1970 to the aurum of 1971) when births rose, presumably reflecting the scare over high-nestrogeo pills at the end of Even this factor, bowever, influenced women starting their families more than those married longer; and it bad bardly any effect oo the steady fall io the number of children horn to womeo who bad already bed three or more childreo. As the fall in fertility started at the very beginning of 1965, ooe must assume some factor affecting behaviour from about the Easter of 1964—six months be-that the Republic of Ireland is an exception to the general trend) but cannot of itself extrend) but cannot of itself explain why pareots want fewer children. One possibility is the increasing realization of the problems presented by the global growth of population, perhaps reinforced recently by economic coosiderations. At this stage the prudent conclusion seems to be that a falling total population is one of the conference and the confine population.

National Freight Corporation Opportunities for Lawyers

The National Freight Corporation, Europe's largest inter-modal freight transport organisation, is in the process of restructuring the Legal Department at its London Headquarters to cope with the continuing expansion of the business in the UK and Europe. The Department has a major role to play in the Corporation's development in such fields as acquisitions and joint ventures. interpretation of legislation and the disposal of property. It does not engage in litigation. We now wish to recruit additional lawyers. Two senior posts are available, both of which will involve the provision of general legal advice. However, each will be orientated towards a particular field. Successful candidates who wish to enter General Management at a later date, may have an opportunity to do so.

Please telephone (0)1-629 1844 at any time! or write - in confidence for information to R. J. E. Barker quoting the appropriate reference:

Senior Legal Officer (Conveyancing) to be responsible mainly for conveyancing in connection with the surplus property disposal programme, currently around £5m. annually, and acquisitions where property considerations are important. A solicitor is required. Ref. A.5653.

Senior Legal Officer (Projects)

to undertake a wide range of commercial work, especially company acquisitions, joint ventures and similar projects and considering new business opportunities, both in the UK and abroad. Barristers or solicitors may apply. Commencing salary: £6000 to £6500 per ennum, could be higher for an exceptional candidate, Ref. A.5654

Young Lawyers

In addition, the Corporation requires solicitors or barristers to assist the seniors generally and to provide advice to group companies on a wide range of legal matters, especially the effects of current and possible future legislation, both UK and EEC. These posts would suit recently qualified lawyers interested in en industrial or commercial career, not necessarily limited to a legal department. Ref. A.5655.

Tenricasee Williame masterpiece."— Tonepared with his, just about every olay currently to be seen in London appears pinny and pales into insignificance."—5. Tel. Three weeks ago the Prom arena was invaded for a per-formance of Stockhausen's triple-orchestral Gruppen. Wed nesday's concert included another composition for separincluded eted groups written et the same (1955-59): Berio'e Allelujah II. In some respects that piece is more flexible in its requirements. The five ensembles may be arranged in a number of different ways, as Berio ex-plained in his introductory talk at the Royal College of Art. Hero four were placed on stage Boulez condocting and the fifth, conducted by the composer, was diametrically opposed.

That brought a good deal of drama to the altercations be-tween string sections or brass groups, and Berio's use of space is principally dramatic, but the effect might have been still more splendid if the stage ensembles had been more clearly divided. Given the evident difficulties of synchronization in this performance, however, things were probably best as they were. Those difficulties robbed the piece of some of its bounding vigour. It proceeds in loud, ecstatic developments which repeatedly fall back to a flute B flat.

There was no lack of energy and brilliance, however, in the performance of Bartok's Concerto for Orchestra, with which the programme concluded. The last movement, indeed, was quickly whizzed into a tempo that the players stood no chance of coping with, though elsewhere Boulez's enthusiasm was more firmly and meaning-fully directed. Between the Berio and the Bartok, Clifford Curzon gave a bighly polished performance of Mozart's Coronation Concerto.

Royal Court

Bingo

Irving Wardle At the end of the National Theatre's The Tempest, John Gielgud stripped off Prospero's robe and stood before the puhlic in the likeness of Sbake-speare, an aging melancholic taking no pleasure in the

It is in that figure that he returns to the Royal Court to present Edward Bond's view of Sbakespeare's retirement; though if any Shakespeariao character overshadows the action of Bingo, it is not Prospero but Lear. Like Lear, Bond's Sbakespeare has spent his life exercising a special and privileged power and only discovered to the state of t covers as an old man what kind of a world he is living in. His motto could be Lear's: "I have ta'en too little care of this ". Bond bases his reading of the man on the factor that has brought comfort to many e middlebrow commentator; namely that the creator of Hamlet and Timon did it all for money, and wound up as a solid Stratford burgher. In Bond, free, as usual, from barnacled responses, that arouses nothing short of horror: coopled with the fact that Shakespeare signed an agree-ment with the land euclosers guaranteeing compensation for commonland evictions. We see that historic deal struck in the Shakespeare is visited in his garden by the magistrate land-owner William Combe who offers him the guarantee m re-turn for his silence. "It pays", he says, "to sit in your garden". The poet continues staring into the middle distance, but there is no doubt of what his decision will be.

The play is subtitled "Scenes of Money and Death": the point being that having coined his talent and quit the bestiality of London for rural sanity, be finds himself more imprisoned than ever. Whatever you turn your back on gets you in the end. Having paid his wife and daughter in money instead of affection, he now loethes them so intensely that he can bardly bear to set foot in the house.

He is also impotent to help anyone else; a beggar girl arrives in the garden and he tries to give her money, but the only result is that she is detained as a vagrant by friendly Mr Combe and hanged as a fireraiser. Too deeply compromised to escape the system, and wracked by the sense of waste, he commits suicide with Judith beating hysterically on his bedroom door for the will.

Bond thus adds to the existing store of bardic "Will" puns; also the play is mined with Lear analogies. Shakespeare sitting between two giggling mental defectives, or feature of the writing is Bond's ledge the real violence of his success in devising a believable feelings.

The piece turns largely on

He makes no attempt to pass him off as a great writer, the assumption being that in talent he is now a burnt-out case. But the tacitum practicalities of his conversation, and the eruptions of jagged tormented imagery in his solo tirades, never run into belittling contrast with the his-torical Shakespeare and also anchor the play as much in the present as in the past. Even without Shakespeare's bear-pit memories of "the Queen cheering them on in shrill Latin", the play's connexion with our world is too obvious to need spelling out.

Bond himself, I think mis-takenly, does spell things out-towards the end, as he also did in The Sea. Perhaps it is in despair at getting his message across by straight enactment; but, theatrically, there is less force in the scenes where he comes clean with Indith and with himself, than in the first three-quarters of the play where one has to deduce his hatreds and despair from evasions and

In one marvellous early pas-sage where Judith rounds on him for lacking feelings and reveals all the monstrous meanness of property-owning domes-ticity, all he can find to say is: "You speak so badly—such banalities, so strange and ugly," It is et odce the charac walking out into the snow like teristically feeble rejoinder of Lear into the storm. working through professional interest, envy, contempt for a less educated man who has not lived, the vista of a long rela-tionship comes into vivid focus When I first saw the play at Exeter. Shakespeare was given e rat-like performance by Bob Peck who left you in no doubt that property had always been his main goal. With Gelgud, needless to say, the figure regains heroic proportions. What emerges from that is the portrait of a man who has made cootact with the world at all; and who discovers it, as he approaches death.

such duologues; and Gielgud is successively partnered in them by Gillian Martell's murderously small-minded Judith, and by Ewan Hooper who rightly represents Combe in the most favourable light as an amiable neighbour who sees himself as a pillar of the community.

Inconcessably the doughtiest partner is Arthur Lowe's Ben Jonson, at whose appearance, stopping off at Stratford to see how things are going and tooch his old rival for a loan, the play anters a region of majestic farce. "Your recent stuff's been pretty peculiar. Tell me", Mr.

Coralling the nonconformists

Cockfighter Edinburgh Film

Festival

11 Harrowhouse (a) Carlton

The film side of the Edinburgh Festival has moved a long way from the amosphere of cocka-leekie and Calvinism attendant on its more austere documentary days. Then Dr John Grierson, if not Dr John Knox, seemed to be the presiding spirit of the place. Now Edinburgh's aim has become more eclectic and more consciously swayed by critical fashion, and the flavour is rather a mixture of black nudding and the Wee of black pudding and the Wee Frees. The festival likes to corral its nonconformists and at the same time to serve up solid Scottish high teas in the form of collected works, retrospectives and national surveys. This year the emphasis is on This year the emphasis is on new German cinema—including, by stretching nationalities slightly, the austere and admirable Swiss-German parable, Death of a Fleo Circus Director, which we saw at Cannes—and on an older America. Some 48 films by the prolific Raoul Walsh, covering the 40 years from Douglas Fairbank's Thief of Baghdad (1924) to A Distant Irumpet (1964), get a thorough going-over at Edinburgh en route in a Naconal Film Theatre seasoo starting next month in seasoo starting next month in London. "The Walshian bero is always plunging into the ucknown and is never too sure what he will find there", wrote one American critic. The vigorous octogenarian film-maker, who went to school with maker, who went to school with the Barrymore brothers end made his start to movies riding a horse for D. W. Griffith, had his own answer. "Everyone has his own impression of things. Maybe the guy was drunk." Edibburgh should offer scope to test all artifudes test all attitudes. Edinburgh usually finds something from the areas of American filmmaking which might be called "off Hollywood", as well as some lightly weighted runners from the busy Roger Corman stable. This year the film they have chosen to show the grees in I ondon is Morey. the press in London is Monte Hellman's Cockfighter, 8 Corman production photographed by the Cuban-French cameramen Nessor Almendros. The cole change came after the interval, when instead of the posthumous A major sonara by Schubert, the festival's com-poser-of-honour, he played four separate pieces also composed Separate is perhaps not quite the word for the *Drei Klavier-*stück, D 946, the related keys and certain similarities of construction of which suggest that they may bave been intended for a new set of considerably more substantial impromptus. The most interesting piece was wight of the course of the Night of the four moons with lone shadow. Damiel Morelon, the French rider who is attempting to win his seventh world ride, appeared in the hears of the sprint today, winning against lowly opposition. He has been riding badly in recent weeks but his beat time was better than that set by his rival in last year's final, Jabinnowski, of the Soviet Union.

Britain's two riders in the sprint were both eliminated. Geoffrey Cook was beaten by Victor Kopylov, of the Soviet Union, and later Xavier Miranda, the Commonwealth Games silver medal winner, in the repêchage. Ernest Crutchlow came up against one of the best sprinters in the world, Niels Fredborg, of Denmark, and was beaten. He won his repêchage, only to be disqualified for posting another rider who descended from the top of the banking.

Shearer the tiger tames the bush

Golf Correspondent

A saucy wind which kept its streagth all day required golf of a much sterner order in the secand round of the Beason and Hedges round at the Benson and redges tournament at Fullord yesterday. Fewer scored well, but the lowest of the day, a 66 from Boh Shearer, was good cough to give him a lead was gund eonugh to give him a lead at the halfway stage. Horton, armed with his "branding iron" purter, gave his usual polished performance and feels ready to huild on a record this year that has been cansistent, especially on the Cantinear. His iron play was particularly smooth. He finished with two birdies, but before that he reckoned he had missed 10 hirdie putts of 15ft or less. Tony Jacklin, on 147, failed to qualify by one stroke.

Although the last two winners of this event have come from Australia and South Africa, the appearance of Shearer (an Australian) in the lead is something of a surprise, for he has done little over nere in the three years since he first appeared on the circuit. He is strong, broad shouldered, but soft-spuken, his voice at the opposite end of the decihel range, from, say, Norman von Nida.

Tenth in the Scandinavian Ingresser, that collowed the Tenth in the Scandinavian inur-nament that followed the Open championship is his best perform-ance over here this season, but ance over here this season, hut at the turn of the year he from his first two lournaments hack in Australia. His last drive yesterday was far from aexthefic, but he recovered well with a four-fron to the green from the frees. This gave him a hirdie, and so many were up in two there as almost to cast doubts on die length of the hote, which is shown as 488 yards on the card. A colleague who has watched Shearer play in Australia considers he is a far front reliable driver, but remembers him repeatedly saving par from reliable driver, but remembers him repeatedly saving par from all over the course.

There was an echo of this yesterday when, from the trees at the seventh, he overshot the green and ended in a high. He found himself structure on greenkeeper's and ended in a hush. He found himself standing on greenkeeper's cuttings—old friend of the professional golfer—and sent in for a ruling. While he was waiting live couples passed through and, by the time relief arrived, he was heginning to pace about like a scaged figer. He was granted a free drop but, being confined to two club lengths, still bad Bn awkward stance on the edge of the bush. He hacked at the ball with a wedge and it scuttled along the ground to within four feet. The put went down and par was saved.

Wind continued to make the line of graceful poplars bow and sway. It blew across, drying the corn side, and at no hole did it directly help. The out-of-hounds threat is more apparent than real here, but many of the greens were hard to find and Polland kept in the race by setting his wedge to work. All fold, he had six single putts, but most of these were short, the result of effective play from just all the scoon.

Changed conditions found our some of the less experienced. On an least two occasions Howard Clark threw up wedge shots as though there had been out a breath of wind. Onsterhuis, who played with him, confirmed bis lendency to bit too hard with two small a club in such a wind, and said it remioded blm of himself when he first turned professional. Oosterhuis scored 70, which began to look really impressive towards. nil the green. to link really impressive towards the end as he mastered the awkward wind on his back. He found the thirteenth green with a three-iron, holed from 121t for a birdle at the sixteenth, and set one birdle at the sixteenth, and set one of his two-tran specials low at the eighteenth flagstick. It finished loit behind the work, but he bad to be cument with a birdle.

Gregson celebrated his thurty-first birthday with a second 68 on a course where, what seems years ago, he tled in first place in a tournament with Huggett, finishing yesterday with three birdles in the last like holes. Huggett slipped down the ladder, he would have been content with a round of par on such a day, a round of par on such a day, for he is not an impatient competitor, but after a perfect drive to the last he missed the green and took three putts from about 12ft for a six.

This uncertainy of the pulling surface found an echo elsewhere.
Snead was not happy on the greens, indeed he has yet to find his touch, laving holed only three putts of more than five feet in putts of more than five feet in the 36 holes, and Jacklin, in the tournament which he won when it was first played in 1970, and in which he has now failed to qualify three times, proved that the pulting touch which he refound in his Configental fournaments recently was a fickle friend. John Jacobs (the American ver-sion) is the best of the three Americans. He is one of the longest drivers on the United longest drivers on the United States tour, and at practice yesterday hit the house at the end of the practice ground, which is conservanvely eadmated as 380 yards away. But Jacobs is less interested in his reputation than in his earnings, and he knows bow to play with disconting. Coming to play with discretion. Coming bome, It was not until the eight-eenth that be took his driver out. He drove into the trees and played

Forge Mill in clear again after his rest

By Pamela Macgregor-Morris Malcolm Pyrah and Trevarrion, who won the Wills Castella Stakes to open the British Derby meeting at Hickstead a year ago, won the same competition yesterday. The Yorkshire-bred mare, by the premium stallion Evening Trial, is something of a course specialist. She won the national championship bere when ridden and owned by Alleen Fraser in 1972, holds by Aileen Fraser in 1972, holds the Wills Hickstead Gold Medal for points won in the major com-peditions here throughout last season, and is well placed to re-season, and is well placed to repeat the feat this year.

One of the most interesting features of this event was the reappearance of Paddy McMahon with Fred Hartill's Pennwood Furge Mill, who has been laid off since the Royal International after pulliog a muscle in his neck. In a six-sided final Forge Mill and McMahon set the target with a second clear round in $6.8set to prove that all is well, and crentually finished second. Forge Mill was runner-up for the Mill was runner-up for the Bridsh Jumping Derby in 1972, and his prospects for Sunday seem all the brighter for his enforced two-week stand-easy.

two-week stand-easy.

Eddie Macken, riding Easter Parade for Ireland, bit the last two clements of the reble in the fastest time of all, 35.4sec, before Pyrah and Trevarrion, who took only 0.1sec longer, pulled off the winning round. Marion Monld's Dunlynne bad the final gate down, but Judy Crago had Brevitt Bouncer—an ideal type of Nations Cuphorse—going as smoothly and accurately as ever in his own time for the third clear round and third place in 40.2sec.

place in 40.2sec.

Ireland's first win came, appropriately enough, in the Emerald Isle Stakes. Brian Henry, from Coleraine, was the last to jump in a field of 33 on Bright Night, and finished 1.6sec ahead of Duncan Mumo Kerr's Dundridge, who had held the lead from the halfway stage. Last Saturday Bright Night won the Wylie Trophy for the civillar championship in Dublin—a trophy which the Dudgeon family have won more often than any one since the war, through the medium of the late Colonel Joe Hume Dudgeon and his son Isn.

Pitcairn to show appreciation of Hungerford Stakes distance

Racing Correspondent The Hungerford Stakes is the

The Hungerford Stakes is the centrepiece of the programme at Newbury todey and what a fine race it promises to be. The field of seven includes four older horses headed by Midsummer Star, who finished second in the Irisb 2,000 Guineas last year, and three three-year-olds headed by Pitcairn, who finished second in the same classic this spring. The field also embraces Royal Prerogative and Pitskelly who finished second and fourth in today's race 12 months ago. Royal Prerogative will he meet-

Royal Prerogative will he meeting Pitskelly on SIb better terms than he did on that occasion. In the circumstaoces it is not altogether surprising to see that Lester Piggott has plumped for Royal Prerogative. He has ridden both colts already this season. Casplan, Estaminet end Lottogift complete the field. I am inclined to think that the final drama will he enacted by Pitcairn, Estaminet and Midsummer Star. Pitcairn is my selection in the hellef that the distance—seven furlongs and 60 yards—will suit him admirably. It was only during the last 50 yards of the Irish 2,000 Guineas that he was passed by Purry Glen.

Pitcairn then fell victim to a virus, and it was this that prevented him from taking his chance in the Derby. His trainer John Dunlop clearly had misgivings ahout running him in the Sussex Stakes at Goodwood last month, end he issued a statement before the race saying that he was not convinced that Pitcairn would be at his best. He must have been delighted to see Pitcairn finish at his best. He must have been delighted to see Pitcairn finish sixth, in front of Midsummer Star incideotally, and only three lengths hehind those who finished in the money. Yesterday Dunlop told me that Pilcairn had pleased him since then.

Midsommer Star bas carried a hig weight to victory at Haydock Park in the meantime, but what Pitcalrn bas done once be ought to he capable of doing again and it will not surprise me if Estaminet turns out to ha his most troublesome rival. For a start, Pitcairn must give bim 3lb. Then there is Estaminet's record at Pitcarn must give bim 3lh. Then there is Estaminet's record at Newbory to hear in mind. When be won there in May be beat the talented General Voic and then he carried Sst 10lh to victory in a handicap two months later, heating older borses in the process.

That performance confirmed our Newmarket correspondent's of the fact that frindor mad it she had been working well with her talented stable companion, Roussaika.

The draw may well have en effect on the result this afternoon. I note that Another Princess has been drawn alongside Val's Girl, another whose chance must be considered seriously. Val's Girl fin-opinion that Estaminet is one of the most improved three-year-olds in training. He told me yester-day that he is still of the opinion that Noel Murless's cold has never been better. Pitcairn is preferred, but only just on this occasion. Murless has chosen the St Hugh's Murless has chosen the St Hugh's Stakes as a suitable opportunity to introduce his promising Tudor Melody filly, Gliding. Gliding is a balf-sister to her owner's good filly, Splashing. Their family is renowned for its speed. Gliding is expected to run well, but she will do well if she manages to beat Honey Pot, who excelled here last month when she finished only threequarters of a length behind West Two and Highelere's younger sister, Light Duty, giving them 4lb. Since then Honey Pot has beaten La Magna by two lengths at Ayr and La Magna has drawn attention to that form by beating intrenched end Jinnylyn in B sponsored pursery at Great Yarmouth.

Speadymede has won a nursery at Newmarket since she finished just behind Pairy Song at Windsor. Pairy Song still has the heating of Speedymede on paper. Amazing Maid is capable of running fast, as she proved when she finished second in the Queen Mary Stakes at Royal Ascot. However, her wretched performance in the Molecomh Stakes at Goodwood, where the course ought to have snited her style of running, undermines contidence io her ability to cope with Honey Pot.

mines contidence to her ability to cope with Honey Pot.
Honey Pot will be ridden by Patrick Eddery who ought to win the Newtown Stakes on Baffin Bay. This lightly raced three-year-old ran well enough hebind Radical and Grey Thunder at Ascot to suggest that a race of this nature ought to he within his reach. Lester Piggott may counter by winning the Stratton Handicap on The Old Pretender. Piggott is also due to ride Henry Cecil's much talked ahout filly, Another Princess, in the Sparsholt Stakes. The fact that this expensive yearling failed to finish in the first three at Ascot in her first and only race so far in the first turee at Ascorin her first and only race so far must have come as a hitter blow to her connexions. She started at odds-on, presumably on account of the fact that rumour had it she had been working well with her talented stable companion, Rous-isbed fourth in her first race at Sandown Park, and the way that she ran there suggested that she has inherited some ability from ber has inherited some ability from her famous parents, Sir Ivor and Valoris, who won the Derby and the Oaks respectively. On the advice of our Newmarket correspondent Val's Girl is preferred.

English Prince, the winner of the Irish Sweeps Derby, and at present joint favourite with Bustino for the St Leger, galloped on the racecourse at Salishury yesterday afternoon, balf an bour after racing had fluished. Ridden by Patrick Eddery, he was accompanied by two stable companions and he worked a mile and a quarter. He moved quite beautifully, pulling his way towards the front near the end end afterwards both his trainer Peter Walwyn and his near the end end arterwards not his trainer Peter Walwyn and his young jockey were understandably delighted. Englisb Prince coughed soon after he had returned home from Ireland and this workout was precisely what was required to show that he coold take bis chance in the Creek Voldeen, Stakes at precisely what was required to show that he could take bis chance in the Great Voldgeur Stakes at York next Wednesday, where he is likely to meet Bustino.

It was also doubly encouraging becaose his stable has been silenced during the past fortnight by a virus. Events yesterday were reassuring hecause Walwyn saddled two runners and one won and the other finished second. His last winner had heen 18 days ago at Nottingham. Hello Hopey, ridden hy Eddery, dominated the Upavop Stakes, and Mary Minor was beaten only by Namecaller in the Ameshury Maiden Stakes. So it seems probable that the country's leading trainer will he hack in action on an extensive hasis sooner than he thought.

Namecaller was ridden hy Geoffrey Lewis who completed a double half ap hour later riding Sunny Stroll. Ryap Price was also at Salisbury yesterday and he saw his filly Ingurance herome his third.

Siroll. Rysp Price was also at Salisbury yesterday and he saw his filly Insurance hecome his third winner at the meeting from only four runners. She just contrived to keep her bead in front of Pretty Loyal and Murrmatch as the Ogbourne Norsery ebbed away. Giacometti and Glen Strae, two of Price's principal hopes for the season, were, so be told me, also hoth affected by the virus, which has created such havoc this season, after they had let him down in the Eclipse Stakes.

Ksar's staying power proves too strong

From Pierre Guillot French Racing Correspondent

Desuville, Aug 15 Only a few incbes deprived English-trained horses of a fine double fo the Important races bere today. Ksar, who had won at the corresponding meeting e year ago, won the Prix Gontaut-Biron but Northern Gem was defeated by Twig in the Prix de la Côte Normande, the race that Ksar had won last season.

The Newmarket horse raced in

The Newmarket horse raced in second place closely following Prinny, who was acting as pacemaker for Admetus. But Ksar was several lengths clear of the main group which was led by Lisaro, Unicornus and Gay Style. Admetus took his customary position at the rear non at the rear.

Inon at the rear.

Immediately they entered the straight, William Carson sent Ksar on, to be chased by Uncornus, a useful horse who was imported from Argentina last summer. Ksar stayed on too strongly both for him and for Gay Style and Adments who were Style and Admetus, who were divided by a short head, end a length and a helf helind Unicornus. Both third and fourth horses ran on strongly but their

Robinson wins his fifth Grand Critérium

From a Special Correspondent Ostend, Aug 15

One of the biggest crowds of the season came to Ostend today and saw Lester Piggott land a splendid double for David Robin-son on Common Land and London Glory.

In the 55,500 Grand Critérium International d'Ostende, Common Land beat enother English risitor, Uncle Remus, who was ridden by Philip Waldron, by an easy six lengths, with the sole Belgian contender. Fleuron, a farther four lengths away third, Prebihas set the says of the Fleuron. the early pace from Fleuron, French Hollow and Common Land. In the straight, Piggort rook Common Land over to the stands the Eclipse Stakes and the Cork and Orrery Stakes.

In the Prix Grey Hat, Piggott jumped London Glory off quickly and proceeded to make all the running. Mille Fleurs, from the same stable as Uncle Remus, tried in vain to close the gap inside the final two furlongs, but never with a lot of hope. The Ostend racegoers took to Lester Piggott even before racing commenced.

Goals are what the spectator relishes and goals are what be has heen starved of by modern tacheal trends. From 1950 to 1959—the age of fuur forwards up and penetrating wing play on both rianks—the clubs of the first division stored a total of 15,420 goals. During the decade from 1965 to the end of last season, when stultiving 4—3—3, 4—4—2 and the wiogless wonders took over, that figure dropped depressingly to 12,716.

That represents a loss of almost 3,000 goals in 10 years at the top level, which is supposed to set an example to others. Its significance should not be inst on the planners and those who have to try to sell the game.

England, having discovered a breath of attacking fresh air and enjoyment in playing under the brief and breezy stewardship of Joe Mercer this summer, must hope to retain a sense of inie de vivre under Mr Revie. There are a number of tuen who can play if they are allowed to—Chan-

It is a challenge for Mr Revie and a new, ynung team of promise.

Doubtless Liverpool and Leeds (when they have sorted out their early troubles) will again be challengers for some major honour. Each, bowever, will face European competition to drain their efforts. But little stands still in football and, while welcoming back Middlesbrough and Luton Towa, together with Carlisle United (for the first time), to the first division, and watching the reaction of Manchester United to the second, I should like to see clubs like Ipswich Town, Burnley, Queen's Park Rangers or Stoke City take over from the heavy brigade. It is a time of change, after all.

Manuscript find throws new light on the poetry of John Donne

Manuscripts by John Donne, the seventeenth-century poet have been discovered after lying undisturbed, perhaps for centuries, in the stables at Kimboiton Castle, near Huntingdon.

Among the six papers, most of them beavily corrected and amended by Donne, is an early draft of "Goodfriday 1613, Riding Westward", only the second extant poem in English in his bandwriting. It is already arousing interest among scbo-

The maouscripts were discovered at Huntingdon Records Office among family papers of the Duke of Manchester. Early estimates put their value at about £100,000.

The Bodleian Library at Oxford, which acquired the only other surviving maouscript of a Donne poem in 1972 after an export licence to a Contineotal collector bad been refused, is expected to he interested.

A large collection of mostly unimportant papers belonging to the duke was moved to Huntingdon Records Office in 1952 from Kimbolton Castle when it was School. They bad laio in the stables and were damaged by

In about 1881 the Historical Manuscripts Commission visited Kimbolton Castle and among more interesting documents then removed to the Public Record Office was Donne's holoa letter, receotly bу the Bodliean acquired Lihrary.

Huntingdon Records Office at the time of the sale nf this letter notified Mr Robert Thomson, a former research student of Queens' College, Cambridge, now an associate profesor of English at Florida University, who is working on the history of ballads, of the existence of an anonymous

With it, in the same bundle of documents, were one or two papers in a hand similar to reproductions of the only maouscript of a Donne poem then known to have survived. Mr Thomson says, however, that the ballad remained of greater significance to him.

A few weeks ago the unexamined papers were brought to the attention of Mr David Mc-Kitterick, of Cambridge Univer-sity Library, who has a know-ledge of Donne's handwriting. He and Mr Thomson examined the papers at Huntingdon and

A further cbeck revealed a badly faded, stained and damaged sixth, the draft of a letter written by Donne from Frankfurt on July 3, 1612, to a lady.

The six papers comprise the draft of an unpublished devotional essay, some notes on the subject of conscience, a fragment of some notes from an unidentified book, a broken quotation, a note from acother book, the letter and the draft of the poem.

Mr McKitterick told me: When you discover something like this you realize what Howard Carter must have felt when be opened the tomh of Tutaokhamun. The fied is of lmmeose literary importance. I am interested in Doone's bandwriting and the recognition of

It would not take a coup to bring British troops onto the streets

No army, however classless and apolitical, can stay that way if it is sucked into a domestic arena in a way which has already overtaken the Army

Two articles in The Times this month have speculated about the possibility of a military coup in Britain. Lord Challoot raised the question and concluded that some such prospect could only be avoided by "a fundamental realignment in the political forces of the centre". Mr Adam Roberts, in reply, des-cribed this as irresponsible talk and said that although there are other dangers to democracy in the current situation "nothing that bas so far been done or said opens up a serious prospect of a potentially successful

Mr Roberts asked two questions: "First, would the armed forces want a coup? Secondly, Lord Chalfont was less precise, but both of them seemed to ignore the other possibility: that it would not he a coup which hrought about the army's intervention in the internal affairs of this country, but hecause it had heen asked in to help the Government.

help the Government.

There are two more pertinent questions than Mr Roberts's: first, will events and the nation's reaction m those events lead to a situation where the armed forces are called in by the Cabinet to aid the civil authorities in administering the country? Secondly, once that has occurred, would the politicians he able, with military assistance, to restore full civilian government and administration government and administration or would they, in a deteriorating situation, merely become the catspaw of the Chiefs of Staff?

Until the army is so involved, the question of its internal politics—the ideology of the officer corps and so on—is largely academic. Not until it was deployed throughout the country in a partly operational and partly administrative role, would a coup of the Chalfont/ Roberts kind become physically ossible, let alnne conceivable.

I therefore want to deal with these two aspects of the issue: first, in what circumstances might the Army find itself having to be deployed fully io aid of the government of the United Kingdom? Secondly, what, if anything, can we learn of the Army's likely behaviour in those very different circumstances of the future, from the social and/or political complexion of its officer corps today?

the Army physically dominatas the province in all matters con-cerning security, crime and law and order—though not yet in capacity to do so.

The Chiefs of Staff would advise the Cabinet what was and what was not militarily possible and safe. They would also advise them oo the miltary consequences of their economic stabi lization policies.

It could happeo then that the fects of a stabilization plan, and the leginimate introduction the troops either to hreal strikes or to assist the police in law-and-order duties could provoke more violent reactions from ao inflamed public. At this point, the Chiefs of Staff might advise the Cahinet that the lives of troops, and indeed the operational effectiveness of the armed forces, could not be guaranteed unless certain other policies were introduced.

The Cabinet would now have a choice to comply with military advice, to resigo in favour of some other parliamentary grouping which could do so and still command a majority in Parliament, or to replace the Chiefs of Staff with more juoior officers who would carry out their instructions. The chiefs resigo or be replaced, to comply with the order, or to igoore the Cahioet's instructions, declare measures which they regarded as essential to their security the restoration of a more stable society.

A coup, or oot a coup? By any other oame it would smell as sour—but paradoxically it would have been reached by perfectly legitimate constituional procedures. Martial law is oot a set of rules replacing the old; it is a state of affairs, where normal legal administra-tion is impossible and the only authority left is the military commander.

This prospect must frighten the British Army as much as it does the rest of us. It is still nearly inconceivable. Besides, some fairly close observation of the Army for many years bas convinced me that the officer corps is still the most apolitical one that any Army could hope to have.

Howevar, no Army—however classless and apolitical—can stay like that if it is sucked into a domestic arana in a way which has already overtaken the Army in Northern Ireland and, on the basis of the above scenario, would threaten to involve it in tha United Kingdom as a whule. Ten years ago the Army carried out an extensive study of the social and economic origins of its officer recruits, and the results were clearly discomforting that the Army made a determined and successful effort to improve the class structure of its officer

In the early 1960s more than half the Army's intake came from the existing officer class

It is many years since people started talking about public participation in planning and complaining about local authorities' lack of receptiveness to residants' complaints. To check on progress in this field we attended the inaugural public meeting of a local action group formed to protest about the state of affairs in Asylum Road, off the Old Kent Road in Peckham.

Protest meetings are some people's idea of a good night out, and this one, in the local church hall, was lively and well attended. The local residents viewed their living conditions with a mixture of amusament, amazement and borror. They laughed when the chairman, a newspeper dispetcher called Derek Keene, claimed the sight of a street cleanar on Sunday morning as a first victory in his group's battle against Southwark council. Women groaned sympathetic-ally when Kaene told the story of a council tenant who came bome one night to find the house he lived in hoarded up

The issue which caused greatest anger was that of vacant sites on one side of Asylum Road, now occupied by 30 gypsy caravana and used by contractors for illegal dumping of huilding waste. Keene said that derelict houses neighbouring occupied ones were being used as public layatories. One section of the audience were keen to tell the ection group that they would get nowhere. "We had a meeting as big as this one five years ago, they shouted. "Nothing has happened since. All you get from this council is white-

Old Moore

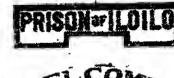

There is a lot of compendoo in the field of dramatic predictions these days, but I am glad to report that Foulsham's Original Old Moore's Almanack is still in the front line of the husiness. The edition for 1975 has just appeared.

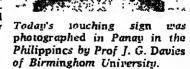

On one of its pages Old Moore claims to have "predicted the General Strike to the day—3rd May 1926", so we must take seriously his forcast that next April "an extremely chaotic situation at home ro-gether with difficultics in Europe may trigger nff a general strike call".

I do not like the forecast fur

September next year, which says: "There are strong indica-tions that a Ceneral Election could take place at this time". (Again?) We are primised "violent arguments and indust-trial unrest" in January. "violent demonstrations and clashes of strikers" in Feb-"prolonged strikes" in ruary, May, and "danger from violent extremists and a severe deterioration in Northern in June.

A cut in foreign travel allowances is nicely timed for July. Despite all this and other assorted trials such as shipping and dock strikes, bankruptcies, fatal fires and explosions, and a high unemployment Christmas, Old Mnore keeps things nicely in perspective and finishes each month with his horse-racing forceasts.

The publicity I gave to Harry Schultz, the American financial adviser who packed up his gold and fled from London to Holland because of business trends. caused considerable despondency. The BBC even had in call in the comforting and comfortable Reginald Maulding to try and repair the damage caused by Schultz's declaration that Britain is finished.

Now the publisher of another economic newsletter has writ-ten in deprecation of Schultz's action. George Lane of the Economic News Agency says that Schuliz's type "is very little use (if any) in times of trouble". Lane says there are still many people who are ready to stay and fight for Britain as he (horn a Hungarian) did in 1939.

Sadly though, Lane does not differ from Schultz's analysis. He simply says he would rather be poor with his friends, "as indeed we shall all he for quito a while". Sorry,

A CHANGE OF TUNE

Private and public interests do not by any means always coincide aod only direct control, through owner-ship, of e substantial and vital sector of the growth industries . . . will allow
I Labour government of the future to achieve its essential planning

That passage does not occur in the White Paper on industrial policy. It helongs to an earlier edition, a section of the party document called Labour's Programme 1973. Gone too is all thet stuff about making "a funda-mental and irreversible shift in the halance of power", and about private industry's "arhitrary exercise of economic power frustrating the national will".

They have changed their tune. The threats, the metaphors drawn from the manual of infantry tactics, the accueations of incompetence or irresponsibility have been excised. Instead the talk is all of partnership, a desire to be of assistance, the collsborative achievement of a vigorous and profitable private eector. Changes have heen made in the libretto too. Most of the old faithfuls are still found in the nationalization shopping-list, and they appear as usual without any serious attampt to explain why they are there or any recognition of the inflationary financing entailed. But pharmaceuticals and machine tools drop out of the "parts of" list. And banks, insurance companies and building societies, which have been on the waiting list for years, are now silently excused. Also, the two innovations proposed in the 1973 programme, a planning agreements system and a National Enterprise Board (NEB), are modified for he abatement of terror. At the end of it all the White Paper draws a line under itself and declares that "the praceding paragrephs represent the whole of the Government's policy towards public ownership for the next Parliament", saving only he possibility of action subject o ad hoc parliamentary authority "if unforeseeehle deve-lopments of compelling urgency were to arise It is evidently intended to he eassuring. The Government, it s probably right to assume, is of merely trying to divert by oneyed words the verhal saulte of its electoral ponents, to whom it was handing crates of reviously mmunition. Ministers seem at ast to have taken alarm at the leteriorating confidence industrialists and investors in industry, a deterioration to which some of their own measures and political rhetoric have conspicuously contributed. One purpose of the White Paper is to reestablish the Governbona fides towards private industry and to end uncertainty about its intentions.

It will not he easy to do either of those things after the hectoring tone of much authorized Lahour cant about industry, and in the presence of the undisguisable fact that the halance of power within the Lahour coalition, while it stands now at a point which is not up, the planning agreements sufficient profits, so that comsystem and the NEB, is shorn of the most objectionable feature which it possessed in the earlier version. À Labour Government was to have taken power to issue directives to companies, if it thought fit, over the whole range of matters to be covered by planning agreements, failing the conclusion of an agreement. That has gone, though there remains a reserve power to compel information. The NEB was to have been given power to purchase compulsorily any company it required for its purposes, subject to a parliamentary Order. That has gone. Planning agreements will not he reinforced by directives and acquisitions by the NEB will be by agreement only. That is a welcome retreat from dictation.

Planning agreements have heen tested on the continent of Europe, and as a means of harmonizing major industrial decisions and government's economic objectives they are more discriminating and flexible than astional plans of either the Stalinist or the George Brown variety. The White Peper speaks of going at it by degrees, which is the right way to go at it; and it says the Government wishes to proceed in a way that imposes the lasst extra administrative coet on the companies concerned. That is at least a eign of recognition that one of industry's chief miegivings about a planning agreement system ie the additional paperwork and diversion of managerial effort it

The NEB emerges as one of those goliathe whose capacity for intelligent sction is threatened by their own size and multiplication of function. It is to he a holding company for nearly all existing state interests in industry. (It will not hold the aesets of the basic netionalized industries as Mr Wilson earlier foretold when carried away by the grandeur of the idea.) It is billed as a new source of investment capital for manufacturing industry. It is to promote the kind of structural reorganization with which the defunct IRC was charged. It is to he a welfare agency for lame ducks. It is supposed to create jobe in areas of high unemployment at the government's hehest. It is to extend public ownership into profitable manufacturing industry by the acquisition of individual firms.

This last, the most contentious of its function, is to he discharged in two main ways. It may purchese outright according to illdefined criteria. But the fact that the purchase must he by agreement, which means presumably that the NEB must make a successful takeover hid, should impose some discipline. The second wey is through the dispensing of public assistance to companies which want it, in return for which the NEB would normally take a corresponding slice of the equity.

FEW PEOPLE AND MUCH PHOSPHATE

The long-standing but low-level policy is decisive, for world disputs between Spain and prices have followed the succespanies increasingly have no choice but to turn to the state for funds, then state shareholding in return for state finance is a recipe for the systematic contraction and adulteration of the private sector of industry, and a contradiction of the aims professed in this White Paper. All in all, the operations of the NEB are diffuse and unpredictable. Industry can be excused if it continues to regard it as menecing.

A mixed economy does not mean a public sector for the government of the day to mess about in as it wishes, over against private sector immune from government guidance and intervention. The social, economic and political interpenetration of government and industry in the world today has proceeded too far for that. Commercial criteria have a neglected part to play in the public sector, and ways must be found of making the political imperatives of government felt in the private sector. The latter have heen daveloping all along through formalized consultation, institutional trial and arror, and time-honoured methods by which Whitehall nudges people in the direction of its choosing.

Much of the White Paper is an outline sketch for further developments of that sort. It is unfortunate that it comes out at a time when industrialiets are particularly wary of that kind of approach; partly because of the bruising they got from the previous government's attempts to get a management/pricesunions/wages pact, which turned out to be a one-sided affair exceedingly injurious to husiness; and partly because of the distrust provoked by the present government's policy antecedents and the noises issuing from one of its several throats.

If the White Paper had been green, and if the means to be adopted for improving the partnership between industry and government were to have grown out of thorough discussion hetween the two parties, there might have heen a better chance of progress. And the same goes for that part of the policy which is directed towards the revival of investment. It is a most urgent requirement, hut the Government's proposals are parcelled up with the rest of its industrial policy in a way that is not likely to conjure up the necessary business confidence.

As it is, the next Labour Government, if that is the next government, is in danger of getting itself into a position in relation to industry similar to that which the last Conservative Government got into in relation to the trade unions-with a cutand-dried policy of some potential benefit, but having lost the confidence of the people most directly concerned. There is, though, this difference between the positions of the two governments: the Conservatives' trade union policy had relevance to the industrial situation at that time, while this government's industrial policy outlined in the White Paper is blindingly irralevant to the immediacy of those elements in the situation facing industry and the national economy which make it the gravest since the end of the Second World War.

Deployment of clergy From The Reverend David H.

Sir, Is there no end m the death-wish within the Church of England? In today's Times (Angust 13) you carry an account of the latest official report to strike at the very root of the established church. The report, drewn up by a working party under the Bishop of Sheffield, party inder the history of Sheriteria, advocates transferring manpower from rural areas—where the church is most arrong—and redeploying such manpower in urban and industrial centres—where the church has bardly ever gained a footbold.

What other commission faced has bardly ever gained a footbold. What other organization, faced with a declining work-force and restricted finance, would advocate auch a piece of Iunacy? The church should be deploying its manpower so as to maintain and consolidate its position in areas of strength rather then suggesting that its resources should be dissipated over e vest area—and for no reason other than e-misconceived egalitarianism. Let the church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church a church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest strength lies; then church first decide where its greatest area.

Why make things difficult for the Highlands Board? One consequence of the adverse decision is that we shall once those come under severa pressure to propagate some form of industrial development in place of the fabrication yard which has just been rejected. This pressure will come not least from the inhabitants of this "scene of happiness and innocence", as the inquiry reporter so touchingly describes it.

The task will not be easy: for the task will not be easy: for the area's great sdvantage, as you so rightly sites, is flat land adjoining deep water, an advantage where platform fabrication is concerned but not particularly eppropriate to simple operations like craft pottery or fish farming.

But we shall do our best. Unfortunately, it was not stressed thet this is at best a fragmented viewpoint. It certainly bears no relaviewpoint. It certainly bears no relation to the facts as we know them only too well north of the border; I think it is not only sad but extremely disquieting that bere again some well-intentioned committee should imply a "national" argument without regard to the needs of Scotland.

needs of Scotland.

Extraordinary though it may sound, we need roads. We need motorways, both for their proven facility to baudle differing traffic volumes and for their safety. I will not burden the issue unnecessarily with comparative figures—there are plenty of drivers who remember the agony of the old Glasgow-Edinburgh A8 compared with the modern M8. Nor is it merely the Scots who wonder just bow long Great Britain can afford the indulgence of an anathronistic A9, where delay is to be measured in grief as well as money.

Little wonder, then, that such talk by the Midlands Committee of "re-evaluating" the motorway pro-gramme smacks of whimsy. They are now undergoing a terrible retribution, which extends to others who are entirely innocent. Surplus City funde should be invested in industry to make it more productive and efficient rather then inflate agricultural lend prices as a tax haven. With my land at £1,000 per acre I had no hope at all of meeting my Estate Duty on death or Capital Gaios Tax if I had given it away. At £200/£300 per acre I can cope.

All taxation changes should encourage reward for hard work and merit ie, those who make the greatest productive effort should receive the highest reward and not as in the past, encourage people to make more money, through capital growth rather than earn it through increased productivity.

Companies are exempt, for it

Companies are exempt, for it would be foolish to tax the raw material of production whether it is factories and equipment or agricultural land with its stock and crops. The intention Pm sure it to tax disposable wealth that does not affect productivity. A small price to pay if you wish the grest mass of people to accept any form of a prices and income policy.

The Green Parer oo the Wealth The Green Parer of the Wealth Tax proposals offers further negonetions to give relief to full-time farmers and es these are who the NFU and CLA really represent then I hope they will hold their criticism in check and enter into useful oegotiations on our behalf.

I fully accept his point about the central front, which, indeed, in e recent book I wrote with my twin htother Geoffrey Williams, entitled Crisis in European Defence, we said: or obvious reasons. I only possible to regard the central front in Nato-Europe, as the region in which the Soviet Unioo can in fact be deterred from invading or moving against the Nato powers." : Moreover, I agree that Nato needs a new strategy which takes into account Soviet thinking and recent developments in tacticel technology. The impact, for example, of the Snapper and Sagrer antitank guided weapons and the mod-ern Sam missiles. Clearly Neto's current war plans need redefinition:
the principle of the "forward strategy" and of the "pause" will have to be modified in the light of recant developments. Indeed the development of a new generation of miniature nuclear wearons for hattle field use must eventually be deployed by Naro in sufficient numbers, so as to render irrelevant the absurd pretence that the old "fire gap" or nuclear threshold, is relevant to the military environment

These new factical nuclear weap-ous equivalent to as little as 50 tons of TNT capable of heins delivered within the two or three feet of any ratget up to any range, ere likely to transform the military ert and have as great an impact on war as the introduction of the machine sun and harbed wire during the Great Wer. The use of such weapons can be regarded as consistent with the guidelines laid down by Nato's nuclear planuine eroup (NPG), end are indeed the only means by which the Soviet Union on the central front can be prevented from successfully waging a short conventional areas of the central front can be prevented from successfully waging a short conventional conventional

The fact remeins that on the southern flank of Nato a protracsourcern mank of Nato a protrac-ted war could occur, and relatively large numbers of men and material committed to battle in an area less susceptible to "crisic management" techniques. War, if it comes in Europe will start there. Yours faithfully.

Parents and education From Mr John Pryd

Sir, One is glad to see that Mr St John Stevas talks about a parants charter for education in somewhat wider terms than one of our Tory county councillors in Hernfordshire who went so far as to write about the educational opportunities and rightful choices of the parents of this county".

We on the Labour side are concerned about the educational op-portunines and the rightful choices of the children and the pupils, which we believe can only he provided for all children in a fully comprehen-sive system in which every school is able adequately to cater for pupils of all levels of ability. We believa that the overwhalming majority of pupils want to get away from the out-of-date system of privileged education and that parents, too, in the main are not likely to be attracted by the vote-catching Conservative flettery.

But we must he glad that Mr St John Stevas now talks about parents eerving as members of gov-erning bodies. We on the Labour side in Hertfordshire have had to fight over the years against Con-servative resistance to win ecceptservative resistance to win ecopi-ance of parcot representation. State to help Glasgow buy £175,000 Van Gogh

The Government yesterday said lt would provide up to half the sum needed by Glasgow to buy a £17S,000 Van Gogh portrait.

The grant, the second highest awarded to a local mnaeum, was announced by Dr John Gilbert, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, on a visit to Kelvingrove Art Gallery, Glasgow.

Art Gallery, Glasgow.

He said that he and the Secretary of State for Scotland had heen asked for help in acquiring Van Gogh's painting of Alexander Reid, a prominent nineteenth-century Glasgow art dealer who promoted interest in art in the city. If the gallery raised the balance of the purchase price, the Government would make a matching con-tribution of up to £87,500, be said. The painting is being offered by Reid's grandson, Mr Graham Reid, Reid's grandson, Mr Graham Reid, of Surrey.

A spokesman for the Gallery said that Mr Reid was anxious that the picture should go to Glasgow because of his grandfather'a connexion with the city.

Kelvingrove had been offered first refusal of the painting, which, on the open market, might fetch much more than the asking price.

Dr Gilbert said the Van Gogh was not only important in itself. It was also the portrait of a man who had done much for art in Scotland and for the Kelvingrove Gallery in particular.

Officials of Glasgow Art Gallery and Museums Association are to try to raise 550,000 towards the cost of the picture and the National Art-Collections Fund has offered a substantial grant.

The portrait, said to be a fine

Lake District: Rewriting history

The history of the Lake District will shortly bave to be rewritten. An intensive five-week dig at the Roman fort and civilian dig at the Roman fort and civilian settlement at Watercrook, near Kendall, which fimished last week, disposes of the theory that Britain's most famous governor, Gnaeus Julins Agricola, conquered the Lake District.

Dystrophies: Inborn abnormality in muscles

The muscular dystrophies, which cause the gradual oaralysis of otherwise healthy people, are among the cruellest and the least understood of buman diseases. They attack, lu an unknown way, the organization of the muscle tissue, normally one of the most conspicuously highly organized tissues in the hody. How the structure of muscle contributes to its contractile function is just beginning to he understood. But how the structural organization comes. ming to he understood. But now the structural organization comes into being in the first place is still largely unknown. Recently some new work at the Medical Research Council (MRGI Laborelory in Cambridge has begun to shed light on this fundamental problem from a rather uncrested. lem from a rather unexpected

The basis for the new research la a deliberately induced genetic mutation, not, of course, in man but in a species of parasitic worm. The consequence of the mutation Is to disrupt the muscles of the worm (the nematode Caenorhabditis elegans) In a specific way under specific circumstances. The disruption occurs once and for all during the early stages of the worm's development, and the worm's development, and the muscle components involved can be identified under the microscope, so that biochemists have a way of seeing directly the effects of a genetic abnormality affecting the actual assembly of the highly structured muscle tissue.

Work on dystorphic muscle has certain strains of mice that seem to have murine versions of some of the inheritable human dystro-phies. This more recent research on nematodes, which are so much more remote from men than mice, really arose as spin-off from an amhitious programme of research on the development of the nervous

The aim of the research was to discover the geneoc orinciples that govern the "wiring-up" of the nervous system during its formation. The two requirements were very large numbers of mutants with developmental ahnormalities and a quick way of identifying those which affected the nervous system. Several mutangenic chemicals were used to generate mutants. The easiest way to pick out nervous system mutants was to look for signs of abnormality in the nervous system's The aim of the research was to mality in the nervous system's outout, which is movement. The motor hehaviour of a nematode is somewhat uncomplicated, so that effectively meant selecting paralysed or semi-paralysed animals. A consequence of that selection procedure was that Into the colprocedure was that Into the collection of mutants thus accrued crept a number of strains that proved on closer examination to suffer defects not of the nervous system but of the muscles. Instead of throwing these mutants away, however, the MRG Laboratory brought to bear on them the conceptual and blochemical trois of its twenty-odd years of experience in molecular genetics, and set about analysing some of the nematode muscular dystroohies from a biochemical point of view. A particulerly interesting point about the latest of these to be described is that It is sensitive to temperature. Normal larvae of Gelegans will develop without mishap at any temperature between 15° and 25° Conngrede. But the mutant described this week in Nature by Dr Henry Epstein of Stanford University and Dr J. N. Thomson of the MRC Laboratory emerges parelysed from exposure emerges parelysed from expos to temperatures above 20°G.

Microscopic examinedon of the stained and fixed muscles of the paralysed mutant pinpoints the deparalysed mutant pinpoints the defect. Normal muscle, viewed end on, consists of a lattice of ibick fliaments of orotein surrounded by parallel arrays of thin protein filaments. The lattice pattern is absolutely stereotyped and very striking to look at Exactly the striking to look at. Exactly the same pattern is seen in murants hred at below 20°G as in their normal cousins. But murants incubated at 25°C are conspicuously different. The thick muscle silvers different. The thick muscle filadifferent. The thick muscle ma-ments are organized normally; but the thin filaments, instead of being serried in parallel, are set at all angles, apparently randomly.

There are several pointers to the nature of the defect that resulla in such a specific failure in muscle assembly. The trait is recessive: nematodes that have inherited one normal and one abnormal gene for it remain normal at the higher temperatures. That means that just one normally functioning gene can produce enough of whatever is needed to make the muscle normal, so that it is very unlikely that the defective gene is one that makes the muscle proteins themselves. A second important clue is the A second important clue is the effect. The effects of incotadial larvae et high temperatures can be reversed at any time up to the point at which the worm reaches admit bood, defined, for aematodes, as sexual maturity. After that, any worm that is paralysed remains up at eny remperature, and any worm that is morile is so at any temperature.

The Imperial Group stated thet it could see oo reason whatiog power to intervene in the way the company conducted its operations. The company had a long acd successful record of growth marred this year only by the effects of the Government's policy on prices and profits. The statement added;

Uneasiness in City as the pound falls

By Tim Congdoo Economics Staff

Some unease at a significant Some unease at a significant fall in sterling yesterday has been expressed in finaocial circles. The pound has fallen from $2.3835 oo Monday last week to $2.3445 at yesterday's close, a drop of almost 4 cents in less than a fortnight.

The weakness of the pound bas become more ooticeable this week, with the publication of the July trade figures on of the July trade figures oo Tuesday clouding sentiment, A further new feature is that the pound, which has so fer held up well against the Continental currencies, yesterday lost value against them as well as against the dollar.

The situation is still very far from alarming, and most dealers yesterday dismissed suggestions of a speculative attack on sterling comparable to those in the late 1960s. The main reason is that, since the collapse of the Herstatt banking coocern in West Germany, most banks bave been taking an extremely cautious view of foreign exchange markets.

Because banks have been limiting their foreign exchange operations they have also been limiting the size of sales of any particular currency. That bas two important conse-

First, the amount of selling pressure that might build up against sterling from normal day-to-day currency trading hetween banks is small. Second, it has been extremely easy for the Bank of England, with its large reserves of foreign ex-change, to intervene in the markets and ensure that banks speculating against the pound.

But if the Bank can readily defeat speculation by hauks or on their own account it would have great difficulty in stopping a speculative attack arising from a decision by Arab countries to move out of sterling into other currencies. So far there bas heen no suggestion that Arah governments have made any such decision, hut, if they do, many hundreds of millions of pounds might move out in a few days.

It is this that is worrying the markets. It is not generally understood that Britain's trade deficit this year has been financed not by official borrow-ing but by private inflows of capital from Arab countries, which, for the time being, they are happy to leave on deposit, in gilts ur in sterliog certificates of deposit io London. UK output maintaining recovery

By Tim Coogdon

A sharp recovery io gross domestic product in the second quarter of this year restored output to levels harely 11 per ceot helow the peak registered in the third quarter of 1973.

Preliminary estimates of gross domestic product, based oo output data, show that it was just over 2 per cent higher in the second quarter than the first, according to the figures released yesterday by the Ceotral Statistical Office.

Most of the recovery was attributable to the increase in industrial production, but the CSO cautions that notput data may have exaggerated gdp in the first quarter because it re-lies oo delivery data and, for the same reasoo, underestimated it in the second quarter.

The figures confirm the earlier impression that the three-day week, and the associated dislocation and sborrages, had less effect on services and commerce than on industry.

Shares recover some ground in technical rally

Both ordinary shares end gilt dged stocks managed a technical rally on the London stock market yesterday following two sessions of beavy losses.

The Beno proposals for public ownership proved somewhat less alarming than the City bad expected, and the absence from the equity market of the institutional sellers active on the pre-vious day steadied the market's nerves.

Sbare prices were helped by the closing of bear positions ahead of today's end to the two-week trading account. The recovery paused for a while after publication of the White Paper, but gathered pace again.

US President resists defence cutbacks in budget savings plea

From Frack Vog! Washington, Aug 15 Presideor Ford is dow holding frequent meetings with his chiaf economic advisers, but there is no indication so far as no just where he will make curs in the current year's budget.

The President is committed to federal spending cuts of at least $5,000m (about £2,136m), but he appears to be resisting cuts in the defence hudger, and many Democrats in the Congress are unlikely to accept cuts elsewhere if they are not made in this key sector.

Mr Roy Ash, Director of the Office of Management and Budget, clearly reflecting the views of the President, rold the Senate's budget committee today that "the defeoce forces programmed for 1975 are at the minimum level necessary for our national security and the cootinuing success of arms limitarings."

Mr Ash added: "Further substantial reductions would upset immediately the balance of power throughout the world. Our natinoal security would be jeopardized and our hopes for further success in arms limitations dashed."

He told the committee that sizable cuts in the current year's budget would be very difficult to achieve "with most of the federal budget mandated by law and by past contractual commitmeets."
He added: "There is a practical limitation oo our ability to reduce outlays greatly in any fiscal year once it is well under way except by the most draconian measures."

ury Secretary, who also appeared hefore the committee today. He said: "This fight against inflation will take years. There are oo short cuts, nn acceptable quick solu-oons. Frequent and abrupt chenges in policy are the worst policy of all."

Mr Simoo added: "The pre-mier lung-term challaoge" for economic policy was ensuring that a sufficient volume of saviogs and investment was generated to support the vast future capital requirements of this eociaty. Ha added that this could be achieved only through raising the share of national output devoted to saviogs and investment hy a substantial margin, and here fiscal policy could play a significant role.

With regard to the short term, Mr Simon said a cut in the present budget was essen-tial, primarily "because it has value in demonstrating to the Americao people that we are serious about inflation. Withnut some cuts in the hudget the credibility of our efforts will he suspect".

Mr Ash told the committee that the fiscal 1976 budget should be in balance, being on present estimates $330,000m—some $30,000m above the current year target level.

Meaowhile legislation to establish a Cost of Living Council is now speeding its way through the Congress.

The Bill to establish it came out of the Secate banking com-

Oo the official reserve transactions hasis the deficit should be interpreted against the background of generally floating exchange rates, and large inflows of liquid funds from oil-producing countries. Increases in foreigo boldings of liquid reserve assets in the United States did not necessarily reflect pressures against the dollar in exchange markets, the Department stated. "This was particularly the case in the second quarter when significant liquid investments were made by official ageocies of petrol-

Extending state control to construction sector By Malcolm Brown

The White Paper's reference to the extension of public ownership in the construction industries marks a major step forward for the trade unions in the iodustry, who have been pressing for such action for some years now. It will arouse dismay and prohably scorn io

What has to be dooe now is to find the proper framework. This may prove to he more difficult than it appears oo the surface. To begin with, there are some-thiog like 80,000 firms in the industry, of which 50,000 are small, employing less that eight

Then it must he remembered that the construction industry is not a monnlith but really consists of two main iodustrieshuilding and civil engineeringhebind which are a range of satellite industries, from building materials manufacturars to plant maoufacturers. The Government's main procome a positive force in the two most significant areas-bouse-huilding and public works.

On the face of it, the former is certainly likely to be the most difficult area to enter.
Housing is the sector likely to pay the most dividends politically if it can be given new impetus and, of equal importance, stability. But the difficulty bere is that the greater part of tha private housing programme is undertaken by small and medium-sized concerns. Even if the Government were for example, to acquire a stake io George Wimpey, the largest contractor in Britain, it would still have access to only a very modest slice of the housing market.

The civil engineering sector, which takes the bulk of public works contracts, is less frac-tionated and might therefore be more easily subject to con-trol. Since the Government is the major client, there would be an additional incentive for it efficiency into this sector.

But how could this ha achieved? The two obvious alteroadves are the purchase of interests in several of the 10 or so companies which dominate the market. But then bow would the choice he made between one firm and another?

The other alternative might he to huild a new state-owned company from the ground up. This would seem to imply major strategic problems of how to staff, manage and equip such a company.

It would also add a larga new capacity to an iodustry wbose fortuoes fluctuate radically over the years—a capacity which might cause severe emharrasmeor at times like the present, when the industry is in a slump.

Britain's great need a competitive spirit

From Mr James A. Prior

Sir, May a visitor to Britain comment on your report of the damage being inflicted oo Mercedes Benz vehicles imported into this country, and the sug-gestion that British dockers are more careless than their Cootinental counterparts. (Times, August 5).
Whether British dockers are normally would bave to be placed in receivership or liquimore careless or less skilled I know not, but it appears that Britain's increasing involve-ment in European commerce will spotlight many areas of inefficiency, fustiness and plain laziness that may have been tolerated io the past, but just won't do now.

I emphasize I speak only as a visitor who, for the nast seven months, bas been impressed by the courtesy, friandliness and tolerance of the British people. I have not, bowaver, heen impressed by the seemingly total lack of competitiva spirit in many husinesses, the reluctaoce to make any effort to secure a sale and, the most noticeable cbaracteristic, the ready acceptance of any difficulty and almost total lack of initiative in overcoming those obstacles which must inevitably arise in Curing the slump in building homes goveroments for encouraging From Mr D. Wand

Sir, It is surprising that the Government and the hollding trades should need to set up a committee to discover the simple fact that huilders have priced themselves out of most sections of their market, but particularly houses. It is less easy to apportion the blame for this, but I suggest it should be shared by the Planning Acts (a luxury this country caonot afford), the boilders for reckless bids for the resulting uncertain supplies of building land, the building societies for makiog irrespoosibility in loans, particularly between Eastle's 1971 and 1973, and successive Hants.

The cure is as simple as finding the cause, but more painful. With an average wage of £2,000 per annum builders houses for less than £6,000 at the bottom end of the market. This cao be done if they restrict prices they pay for land, confine wages to "trade union rates" and limit uneconomic overtime. Yours faithfully 26 Beechwood Crescent,

Why the state pensions plan was scrapped sions for those closest to rerire-

Sir, Mr lan Liddingtoo (July 12), without declaring his ioterest io the matter, sets out his reasons why the trade unioo movement might oot have approved of the scrapping of the State Reserve Scheme.

My previous letter (July 2) was intended to dispel the gloom cast by those pessimists who seized on Barbara Castle's anonuncement (of the Government's decision not to introduce the State Reserve Scheme in 1975) as the excuse to encourage employers to draw hack from inaugurating or occupational amending schemes.

It would therefore seem to be appropriate to give some reasons why the Reserve Scheme was scrapped:

First, the second pension provision of the Social Security Act, 1973, being totally inadequate, would have kept millions of pensioners on means-tested supplementary henefits for the remainder of this ceotury and well into the twenty-first century. Second, the reserve scheme would bave given meagre penment, eg, a man with average earnings of £41 per week in April, 1975, and with three years to reach age 65, would have secured a reserve pension of 47p per week. A woman of S7 with the same earnings—a pension of 38p a week! (The increase in the State Scheme Peoslon of £16 for the married couple and £10 for the single persoo from July 22, a 29 per ceot increase in total, bas obviously more than overtakeo this low level of huild-up.)

Third, the pension provision for womeo contributors would have been extremely poor, for example, after 20 years' contrihutions tha reserve pension would have represented approximately 6 per cent of her earnings at retirement. Fourth, the widows' provisions would bave been derisnry—being half of the husband's pensioo which itself had a low rate of accrual. Fifth, unlike occupational pension scheme contributions there was 10 be no tax relief on employees' contribution to the reserve scheme. It has heen said repeatedly by ministers that the White

These loog-term propos-will unfortunately take two three years to implement I unioo's view, and I am cert that all other unions hold equally strongly, is that the moval of the second pens statutory spur is no reas why good occupational pensischemes should not be set or existing ooes improved u future legislation is enacted. It is time that all of

Mr. J.A. Lumsden covered the following points in his review of the year tn 31st May 1974 posted to shareholders on 15th August 1974.

RESULTS

Revenue before taxation increased fram £670,000 in 1973 to £746,000, almnst entirely nn account of increased deposit interest. On the capital side total assets and the net asset value per share fell during the year, reflecting the severe falls which have taken place in stock market values.

PORTFOLIO

The percentage of equities invested in the USA increased from 25.6 to 36.7 and is now our largest percentage. The UK percentage has fallen from 43.8 to 35.2 and that of Japan from 16.3 to just under 14. OUTLOOK

Tha past year has been a catastrophis year for investors generally, and even in the dult at the Decision. While it is hoped building light nn the horizon. While it is hoped there may be favourable apportunities for investment in UK equities later this yes. it is considered that at the present time the prospects are too uncertain. The USA market has proved disappointing in recent months, but the prospects for some recovery appear better than in most countries. Japan appears vulnerable in the sbort-term, and we have been reducing our investments there and in Asia. Report for the 1st half year 1974.

The favourable development of results continued in the second quarter of 1974. Compared with the second quarter tif 1973, sales increased by 23% to Hfl 2,900

The increase in uperating income and the decrease in interest charges caused net income to rise to Hfl 200,9 milliun in the first half uf 1974, compared with Hfl 146.6 million in the corresponding period of 1973. All pruduct groups contributed to the increase in income, with the exception of the coatings and consumer products sectors. In these secturs, incume was lower than last year, partly as a result of price cuntruls.

Cash flow in the first half uf 1974 amounted to Hfl 511 milliun (1973: Hfl 454.1 milliun). The number tif emplayees at June 30, 1974, was 108,000 (at end 1973: 105,800).

Replacement demand up

Automotive Products' £1m fall in pre-tax profit for the six months to June 22 is largely explained by power restrictions in the first quarter, followed by a failure to capitalize oo strong demand because of material and component shortages. It is encouraging, however, that by the end of this year price rises are exto have matched cost

With home and export demand for higher margin replacement parts necessitating additional capacity and now accounting for some 65 per cent compared with around half of AP's business last year, the hope is for a holding of margins during the latter six months of 1974, even if there is little improvement in original equipment activities.

As for the longer term out-look, AP has opened some 40 service depots to sell its own particular products, like hrakes, in the same quick turnover way that silencers and tyres can be sold. What the loug-term effect that will have on profit remains to be seen, but a small recovery in the current six months for an annual profit perhaps 15 per cent down is in prospect, With the sbares at 26p this poiots to a prospective p/e rano of around 4 and a yield of around 9 per cent; enough to warrant retending of the sbares.

Philips Lamp Price controls hit margins

Mildly disappoioting second-quarter figures from Philips Lamp elicited a similarly ner-vous reaction in the market yes-terday to that which greeted Unilever's somewhat disappoint-ing: results: on Wednesday, Philips fell 20p to 580p in Lon-don and Fl 1.8 to Fl 26 in Amsterdam. Fear of a consumer spending slump is the common factor.

In Philips's case, the 15 per cent sales gain in the first quar-ter weakened to a 13 per cent advance in the second period as reducing demand for white goods offset the gaios in colour television. Ominously though. component sales were slacker in the second quarter, anticipating reduced growth in colour television production. Industry sales projections for the second half of 1974 bear this out, particularly in the United Kingdom. Fortunately, data systems and iodustrial equipment sales were better in the second quarter, and telecommunications second half.

Thanks to its overseas content which brought in 26 per cent of the £388,000 pre-tax total, Negretti & Zambra had a degree of insulation against the worst of the vagaries of the UK economy. Interest charges fell £28,000 last year to £20,000, largely due to the conversion of the loan stock. Eorrowings are, however, cootinuing to rise to finance the work in progress and increased turnover.

Current year prospects are difficult to assess but, assuming there is no undue industrial disruption, one could be looking at pre-tax profits in a year's time of some £450,000. Meantime, a vield of 93 per cent and a pie ratio of 3.8, fully diluted, with the shares at 40p are rendered more attractive by the asset underpioning of 118p.

Bad though Royal Insurance's openiog quarter may have been, the market has been equally aware that it was going to bave some fairly nasty experiences to account for in the second quarter too. And so it turns out, with the North American toroadoes absorbing £5m and the Flixborough liability a further £2m Rue stripping out further £3m. But stripping out first-half "exceptionals" of of first-half "exceptionals" some £13m suggests that underlying trend is not all that

In the United States, for example, the second quarter position would bave looked very much better hut for storm damage. True, it is dangerous to read too much into such signs. But at least Royal reckons that the competitive position in the States is, if anything, slightly easier oow, while it also has some significant premium increases coming through. Elsewhere, the best oews perhaps is that, but for the flood damage and poor fire experience, the Australian position is looking appreciably healthier—with the possibility of workmen's compensation returning to profit hy the eod

Overall, however, it still looks as if Royal is going to produce disappointing figures for the full year, particularly with investment income growing coosiderably less fast than some of the other composites. But that in itself should provide no worries for the shares given a prospective yield at 164p of 11.4

INDUSTRY WHITE PAPER.

The NEB, a formidable institution for state intervention

There were pleoty of questions yesterday but few factual answers when Mr Beon sweated uoder the television arc lights tp explain the Government's plans for the regeneration of British industry. At first nervous, the Secretary of State for Industry quickly gained his normal confidence, with the flow of what someone called "Bennspeak" gaining momentum. Only once did his hand reach discreetly under the portable lectern to switch on that now famous personal tape recorder he uses to take down a tricky answer.

It is necessary, of course, ro make one very viral assumption hefore getting down to the rola and duries of the National Enterprise Board (IRC "with bells on", said one sceptic). That is that Lahour will win the next general election with a working majority needed to pass a new majority, needed to pass a new Industry Act bristling with new powers of intervention.

If that assumption is made, then the NEB, essentially the product of backroom research at Transport House, looks a pretty formidable new state institution, to be lubricated with a greet tranche of public funds and run by a newer breed of young tigers now those schooled by the late IRC have moved on public ownership under powers Mr Benn and his advisers are making oo guesses on what ininal-sum of taxpayers' moocys will he required for making investments and takeovers, or Starting new business ventures. But, perhaps significantly, he did point our that in 1966 the Industrial Reorganization Corporation needed £150m and the equivalent today would be around £300m. "And IRC type work is just one of the NEB's functions", added Mr Benn.

Fortunately, the principles are available in the Government's White Paper. The Board will have the IRC's entre-preneurial role in promoting efficient industry but, ominously, it will retain the shareholdings it acquires.

At first, the NEB, to be a holding company with a statutory financial objective and public dividend capital, will take control of present state shareholdings in Rolls-Royce (1971), International Computers,

It is to distribute money to sound companies, with short-term financial or managerial difficulties, receiving compensation (so the annual accounts and report to Parliament are not distorted) when called in to rescue ailing concerns.

Other duries include giving advice to Government departments and nationalized industries, as well as starting new ventures in competition with the board had not heen private enterprise or joining ships with its subsidiary com-

In practice this may seemingly endless queue of in-dustrialists looking for cheap money, or help with influencing compenitors operating in the To ensure NEB goes much farther and secures its financial base, the Government stresses that its main strength must come through the extension of public ownership by acquisi-tions of individual companies in profitable manufacturing industry. And this is where the controversy warms up. Take-overs, whether 100 per cent or not, will require the agreement of comnaoies, with the Government directly vetting all deals of £5m or more.

Whoever is found to run the NEB will be told that he heeds an undisclosed number of com-panies with 100 per cent take-overs "io order to avoid con-filct between the board's objec-tives and the interests of private shareholders".

What bappens to minimize ootential conflicts arisine from large majority sbareholdiogs is not specified, although the White Paper wanly declares that internal financial relation-

The Department will also continue to deal with special situations that have to be taken before the Commons, eventually handing over a problem to the NEB which might have dealt with matters in a different way, without the constraints of specific ministerial directions. What happeos when an agreed bid is suddenly dis-rupted because acother party enters the arena to contest the NEB's plans? How can a separate Scottish Development Agency handle NEB work in Scotland without confusion (many companies do not make territorial distioctions in share, or other, structures)? What are the yardsticks for prompt and fair compensation to shareholders when comoulsory acquision is approved by Parliament and management responsibility transferred to NEB?

These and many other questions were being asked withio industry and the City yesterday. Whitehall itself must have worries about duplication and confusion. The NEB will be answerable to Mr Benn's department but, when it gets active in industries under the sponsorship of other Mioisters, there may be squabbles for Overseas investors, too, must

This raises difficult issues of comraises difficult issues pany law, for the duties of hoards, liquidators and receivers are already laid down to avoid fraudulent trading when 30 operation becomes insolvent. Whitehell found itself in serious legal complications during the rescues of Rolls-Royce and Beagle Aircraft.

Final judgments on the role and potential effectiveness of the NEB must await the actual details of the enlarged Industry Act. Its duties have to be spelled out with more precision and some of the foreguing, and other, questions may or may not be then satisfactorily answered. What must be clear to industry is that it will be a significant new state agency which not only hands our money with strings but also will be in direct competition with private infor the iotroduction of planning agreements into industry are considerably watered down from the original Labour Party suggestions on which they are based.

Cautious approach to planning agreements

Although many details still bave to be spelt out, the broad outline of the scheme as amended is clear. All the elements of compulsion in the actual drawing up and administration of the pfanning agreements themselves have been removed.

That this system needs improvement is obvious, and is made more so by the doleful plea in an Annex that in the early stages of planning agreements, Government should be provided the issue, with information about the past two years before being told about future plans. Given the immense import-ance of some key companies in each industry, it is a telling criticism that Government departments supposed to be sponsoring them have never taken the powers, or possibly the trouble, to find out.

INTERIM DIVIDEND

licome 81, 1987 1 Gigns 81, 1987

8 CONVERTIBLES

The directors have declered a first interim dividend at 2.5p and e sacond interim dividend of 2.5p per 25p unit of stock to be paid on 18th October 1974 and 3rd January 1975, respectively. With the eddition of stockholders tax credit there payments are equivalent to "gross" dividends of 3.73p and 3.73p. The two payments total 5p, or 7.46p "gross" compared with the lirst interim for 1973 of 4.5p or 6.429p "gross".

The directors' decision to declare two interim dividends at this stage, instead of the usual one, is e move towards reverting to payment of one interim dividand in November each year which was the practice prior to the tax consideratione arising from the Finance Act 1972. In recognition of the dalay which: stockholders will axperience before receiving the aecond payment, the first payment is baing made some five weeks earlier

The first dividend will be payable to etockholders registered at the close of business on 17th September 1974 and the second dividend to those registered at the close of business. on 26th November 1974.

It is anticipeted that the final dividend for the year will be paid at the usual time next May, and the directors' intention is that they will recommend a final dividend which will be such es to increase the total distribution for 1974 by the maximum amount permissible under present regulations. The madmin distribution would then he 12.544p (19.723p "gross") compared with 11.65p (17.101p "gross") for 1973, en increase of 7.7% in the actuel payment (9½% in the "gross" figure). Arising out of tax changes in the March Budget and the alteration in the Company's share cepital as a result of acquisition of Sterling Estates it was possible to increase the gross " dividend for 1973 by 9.6% against the then general limit of 5%. As a consequence of this it is now only permissible to increase the "gross" value of our dividend for 1974 by 91% against the present statutory limit of 121%.

CREDITABLE RESULTS DESPITE DIFFICULTIES

Extracts from the directors' report and circulated statement of the Chairman, Sir Henry Warner, Bt.

The surplus from property reotals has increased by £116,000. This is mainly due to rent increases under the Housing Acts: further such increases, except those arising from improvements to properties, are now frozen by Goternotent Order and the end of 1974.

Profits from sales of properties now loclude those made by the group's investment companies which have previously been taken direct in non-distributable reserves; last vegr's figures have been adjusted to correspond. It is the Board's pulicy to plough back nearly all dealing profits and those made by the investment companies are required to be ploughed back under their Articles of Association. This accounts for the item $235,152 taffer tax1, profit retained; non-distributable.

In 1973 profits from sales before for included exceptional fiems totalling £152,000. Altiming for this they are only £63,000 tower, a very creditable result in present circumstances. Demand for our type of property continues but as intending purchasers have difficulty in obtaining tinance must transactions take much more time and trouble than usual. In the first three munths of the current financial year we have sold more properties for a greater rotal amount than to the same period for 1973.

Although it is the Board's policy out to distribute the dealing profits, these sales are most important to the company because they provide a substantial cash flow. The tangible results of this appear in the rise in other iocome reflecting the relovestment Shareholders are being given the opportunity to cluose to receive the proposed final dividend in the form of a scrip issue of new ordinary shares instead of in cash. of our surplus funds.

The company has received untline planning consent to build a village of 1,000 dwellings on the disused aerodrome at Martlesham Heath near lpsnfich. We also have cooseuts for some industrial development, and by the date of the Annual Meetlog six new factories should be completed and let. Planning of the village has reached an advanced sidge and 1 shall keep shareholders informed of further progress.

Cocoa steady after £20 fall

COCOA futures started the afternoon at limit-down with nearby September establishing the £20.00 movement. The easier trend conpoued to the nears after the osnal 30-minute break. But sbortcovering, possibly connected with currency, soon reversed the trend and eventually sent some positions into new high ground for the day. The close was about steady. Final levels ranged from £5.00 a tonne higher on balance to £5.50 lower. Nearby September still closed some £4.00 a toune lower despite the rally.

Nearby September registered almost a limit fall this morning, almost a limit tall this morning, the lowest trade heing done in late session, some £19.50 a tonne below last night's levels. On balance, losses in other months were much less severe and ranged from £2.50 to £10.0 a tonne. Market gources attributed the Market Rources attributed the pressure on September to long liquidation oo technical grounds based on a diminishing run-up period to its first tender day on September 2. The Rources said that part from September, the market was inclined to drift in comparadovely thin jobber-activity.

Easy day for discount market

In the discount market yesterday, money was in extremely plen-tiful supply and, although two or three houses were thought to have been a little short in the early afternoon, the Bank of England eventually decided to "mop-np", the first such operation for more than a month. This was done through moderate sales of Treasury bills to both banks and houses.

The easy conditions came as no surprise, as Wednesday's official assistance was not strictly necessary and the banks had large surplus balances to carry over to yesterday morning. In addition, there was an excess of Government disbursements over revenue trans-fers to the Exchequer, and note circulation fell.

Secured-loan rates started the day in the region of 10½ per cent, but fell right sway to s close of between 2 and 3 per cent.

Canai Freight Potential

The British Waterways Board's 340 miles of commercial waterways carried 5,000,000 tons of freight in 1973. The canals are ideally linked to Britain's four major astuaries-Thames, Severn, Humber and Mersey-and offer enormous potential not only for bulk commodities but also import and export merchandise using the economical facilities offered by the latest barge systems including barge-carrying ships. Other facilities include oil terminals and specialist. operated barges tip to 1,000 tons.

The Board operate Docks at Sharpness (Bristol Ghannel) and Weston Point (Mersey) and have 19 Depots offering over 1,000,000 sq. ft. of covered warehousing, plus distribution and specialist handling.
